Another Dramatic Finish

Old Tension Is Showing Itself Again

JEFFERSON CITL (AP) — Missouri's Legislature is heading for another dramatic finish. But you can't tell yet whether it's going to be high drama or low comedy.

Traditionally, the session ends with House and Senate deadlocked in angry, name calling battle. Now, with only four weeks of working time left, the same sort of tension is starting to build.

There had been hints of impending trouble before. Sen. John P. Barrett, D-St. Louis, brought them into the open for the first time last week.

He threatened a one-man filibuster against the bill to liberalize the state aid formula under the school foundation program unless the House passes the legislation to set up three intensive mental treatment centers.

The House has passed a bill to change the state aid formula in a way that would increase the costs by an estimated $35 million in the next two years. The bill has been cleared for hearings by the Senate Education Committee and the first hearing is set for Wednesday afternoon.

Meanwhile the Senate has passed bills to set up intensive mental treatment centers at St. Louis, Kansas City and Columbia at an estimated cost of $9.7 million for the next two years. And reports emanating from the House indicate the program may be in trouble there.

That sets the stage for a fight between the two houses and the conflict could become explosive in the final weeks of the session. It's the kind of a situation where logic flies out the window while emotional heat and political pressure take over.

As of now, the issue is very much in doubt, partly because no one knows how much money will be available for either the school or the mental health program.

Sen. J. F. Patterson, D-Caruthersville, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, hopes his committee can finish its work on the main money bills by Tuesday. That will shed some light on the money situation but will not solve the problem of how much to allot for schools and how much for mental health.

That answer won't be known until much later, after the legislators have spent a lot of time, temper and anguish in seeking the solution.

MARBLE CHAMPIONS — Jack Arnold, 13, (left), son of Mrs. Jack Arnold, 2213 West Second Street Terrace, and Maurice Pitts, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Pitts, 2507 Wing, topped the A and B divisions, respectively, in a marble tournament Saturday morning sponsored by the Sedalia Boys Club. Paul Klover, supervisor of the tourney, presents the trophy. Arnold won in the age 13 and above division and Pitts in the 10 to 12 category. (Democrat-Capital photo)

Dedicate Reservoir In Kansas

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP)—Tuttle Creek Reservoir, an $80 million conservation, flood control and recreation project, was dedicated Saturday.

Sen. Frank Carlson, R-Kan., described it as a milestone in Kansas progress.

"Now that we have spent the money and finished the job, we will expect the floods to be reduced and we will expect to see more water in the rivers during the dry summer months," Carlson said in his dedication speech.

"I have every confidence that Tuttle Creek will live up to our expectations," he added.

The sprawling reservoir on the Blue River has been under construction since 1952. It was first authorized by Congress in 1938.

Col A. P. Rollins Jr., Kansas City district engineer, whose office supervised the construction, said the reservoir is ready to take the full amount of flood water for which it was designed.

"We all may well be proud of Tuttle Creek--the largest body of water in Kansas--for it will be a big asset both in dry seasons and in time of flood," Rollins said.

Another speaker, Brig. Gen. R.F Seedlock, Missouri River division engineer at Omaha, said that Kansas, with Tuttle Creek and its other reservoirs, is contributing substantially to water needs of the nation.

"As a state bordering on the Missouri River, Kansas has in the past suffered from its floods, and now enjoys its harnessed status," Seedlock said, adding:

"The big dams of the upper Missouri River contribute to the welfare of people in the Big Blue valley, just as the prosperity and produce of this valley add to the total good of the people in the up-river dam country.

Attorneys May Fight Court Effort

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) Attorneys for Gov. George C. Wallace are expected to fight federal court efforts to bar him from interfering with desegregation of the University of Alabama.

Sources close to the governor said Saturday that he does not plan to show up Monday at a federal court hearing on the injunction in Birmingham. However, he will be represented by counsel unless he changes his mind, the sources said.

Precisely what legal tack the segregationist governor will take has been kept under wraps by his advisers.

U.S. District Court Judge Seybourn H. Lynne issued an order May 24 directing Wallace to appear Monday and show why he should not be barred by injunction from interfering with the enrollment of two Negroes in the University of Albama system.

Wallace's vow to stand in the door and block any Negro at the university drew more criticism, this time from Lt. Gov. James B Allen who warned that defiance of court orders will lead Alabama down a blind alley.

Allen said this state must not follow the Oxford route, referring to bloody riots that followed desegregation of the University of Mississippi in the wake of defiance by Gov. Ross Barnett.

Allen — who would become the chief executive if the governor went to jail for contempt of court and could not carry out the duties —appealed to residents of Alabama to "show that they abhor violence and mob action."

"The good name of the state is at stake as the crisis nears its climax," he declared. "What takes place at the university on and after June 10 will affect the future welfare of our state for decades to come."

Must Wreck His Car

Alderton was charged with driving an unsafe vehicle—the car had no brakes, no tail light, three smooth tires, wheels short one bolt apiece, loose steering, a cracked windshield and defective doors.

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP)—June Week opens Sunday at the U.S. Air Force Academy, climaxed by the appearance of President Kennedy at commencement exercises Wednesday.

The President will fly here to address the graduating cadets.

Will Destroy Dog That Attacked Girl

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — The owner of a female German Shepherd dog which attacked a 4-year-old girl said Saturday she would have the animal destroyed.

The girl Carol Ann Kent, was bitten so severely on the face that it took 135 stitches to close the wounds. She was reported in fair condition at a hospital.

Carol Ann and his sister, Barbara Kent, 41, were at the home of Mrs. Georgia K. Roberts to view the dog's 9-day-old litter of pups Friday.

While they were looking at the pups, the mother dog, Carla, attacked Carol Ann. The older sister grabbed the dog's mouth and held it open so as to free the younger girl.

Mrs. Roberts said she had decided after a sleepless night to have Carla placed under observation for rabies for 10 days and then have her put to sleep. She said she was unable to explain the dog's actions, except that she had recently suffered from milk fever.

May Ignore An Appeal For Peace

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—The British-Soviet appeal to Laotian factions for peace appeared Saturday to have fallen on barren ground in the vast territory controlled by the pro-Communist Pathet Lao.

Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma's office charged that the Pathet Lao staged another fierce attack against neutralist positions near the Plaine des Jarres, with foreign troops as the spearhead.

The foreign troops, not officially identified, were believed by military men in Vientiane to be Communist North Vietnamese.

Coupled with this activity afield was a broadcast from Khang Khay, Pathet Lao headquarters, of a policy statement declaring a readiness to negotiate—but on Pathet Lao terms.

The broadcast statement avoided replying directly to the peace appeal by Britain and the Soviet Union, cochairmen of the Geneva conference on Laos, delivered to Deputy Premier Prince Souphanouvong and his Pathet Lao aides at Khang Khay Thursday.

But it laid down a series of conditions laced with attacks on the United States, the three-nation truce commission and the jungle kingdom's conservatives, whose sympathies lie with the neutralists.

The statement said the Pathet

Sewer Bond Issue Election Tentatively Set In August

Water Pollution Board Prodded for Report OK

Sedalia voters will cast baliots on a $3-million sewer bond issue in August if a tentative election schedule proposed at City Hall is carried out.

The election date is hinged to approval by the Missouri Water Pollution Board of a recent survey of Sedalia's sewer facilities by the Burns & McDonnell engineering company, Kansas City. The report was submitted to the board May 8 by the engineering firm.

Mayor L. L. Studer dispatched a letter to the Water Pollution Board Friday prodding the panel for a quick study of the survey so plans for an election can be finalized.

The mayor told The Democrat-Capital a bi-partisan committee is to be appointed in the near future, with the advise and consent of the council, to spearhead a drive to inform voters of necessity for the bond issue. Equal party representation will comprise the committee.

Study Bonds

In the meantime, the City Council is studying the types of bonds most feasible if the issue is approved by voters. Either general obligation bonds or revenue bonds will be issued, Mayor Studer said.

An original sewer survey prepared by the engineering firm last year was rejected by the Water Pollution Board but the new survey recommended Sedalia pass a $3-million bond issue to bring sewage treatment facilities up to date. A series of waste stabilization lagoons were recommended as the most economical modernizing plan to handle Sedalia's currently over-loaded sewer system and enable the city to continually enlarge sewage treatment facilities necessitated by industrial growth and population increase.

Federal Aid Available

Once a sewer bond issue is passed by Sedalia voters federal aid up to $600,000 per city can be re-

Pictures No Good

Thresher Wreck Still Not Found

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy scuttled Saturday its belief that the hulk of the sunken atomic submarine Thresher has been found. It said instead that a thorough analysis of underwater photographs fails to confirm this.

An official statement said none of the pictures taken Wednesday from the scientific ship Conrad of something on the bottom in about 8,400 feet of water could be identified as that of the Thresher.

The Thresher failed to return from a deep test dive on April 10 at a point about 220 miles off the New England coast. Aboard her were 129 Navy men and civilians.

The Navy statement said civilian scientists aboard the Conrad, using limited photographic interpretation equipment available on the ship, "initially evaluated objects in the photographs as part of the hulk of the submarine." But when the pictures were scrutinized with the analytical equipment of the Naval Photographic Interpretation Center here Friday night "they failed to confirm this evaluation," the Navy said.

Friday, the Navy said that on the basis of radiophone conversation with the civilian scientists abroad the Conrad, the pictures appeared to be portions of the sail, a forward diving plane and a portion of the hull, showing a rupture.

The Navy statement did not discuss what the photographs showed under detailed analysis here. But there appeared to be a possibility that the underwater camera had taken a series of pictures of part of its own equipment. It was suggested that what happened was this:

The cage containing the underwater camera was lowered along a steel cable on the lower end of which was an anchor-like weight. As the camera neared the bottom, it somehow turned around. The fast sequence series of eight pictures which the camera made in scanning the object was not of a submarine but of the lead weight partially imbedded in mud. its outline could have been mistaken for that of the hull and superstructure of a submarine. A close-up might have enlarged the apparent dimension of the object falsely.

Comes to US To Explain Policies

Following Invasion Of Red Chinese; To Stay Nine Days

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — President Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan, 74, a leading interpreter of Eastern religion and cultures to the West, left Saturday for the United States to try to explain India's policy and thinking since the Red Chinese invasion.

He will make a nine-day state visit including consultation with President Kennedy and a cross-country tour, then fly to Britain with a similar mission.

The United States and Britain rushed planeloads of arms and ammunition to bolster defenses of this traditionally nonaligned nation during the fighting last fall. With help from Canada and Australia, they now are shipping India 120 million worth of additional military aid.

Radhakrishnan intends to express Indian appreciation for this help.

He also is seeking to make the West forget the vitriolic V. K. Krishna Menon, who long was the image of India abroad. Menon dropped to relative obscurity here after Prime Minister Nehru, heeding a popular outcry when India's frontier lines caved in, dismissed him as defense minister.

The president is flying with an eight-member party and is due in New York Sunday.

The official schedule cails for him to fly on to Langley Air Force Base, near Williamsburg, Va., arriving at 4:30 p.m. Sunday. He will spend the night at Williamsburg. President Kennedy is to receive him at the White House Monday.

Sedalian Is Awarded Traveling Fellowship

One of the Pulitzer Traveling Fellowships for 1963 was awarded Friday at the Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism to Maurine Ruth Hoffman, 1412 West Broadway, Sedalia.

The presentations were made at the School's Journalism Day Luncheon Friday by Dean Edward W. Barrett.

The grants are presented to the top-ranking members of the graduating class for travel and study abroad.

Miss Hoffman, who graduated from the University of Missouri, was on the staff of the Kansas City Star from 1959 to 1962.

State Reputation For Initiative Is Increasing

NEW BLOOMFIELD, Mo. (AP) —"Missouri is increasing its reputation as a leader in state and local initiative for community progress," Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said Saturday in dedication ceremonies for this Callaway County town's water system and municipal park.

"Some federal help in loans and grants is available to progressive communities, but leadership and justification must be supplied locally," Symington said in his prepared address.

Modern highways, better schools water resource development and community determination, Symington said, can help build up rural Missouri to create more opportunities for young people on the local front.

He commended Gov. John M. Dalton for leadership in developing the state and praised New Bloomfield for its local progress toward inviting future growth.

Symington was introduced by Mrs. Edith McClellan, mayor of New Bloomfield.

Top Negro Leaders Are Arrested

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Police seized a national Negro leader, Roy T. Wilkins, when he started picketing in front of a downtown variety store Saturday.

They booked him on a felony charge and released him on $1,000 bond.

Wilkins, 61, of New York, is executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

A few hours later police swooped down on a Negro mass march, circled it, and arrested truckloads of the demonstrators.

The sidewalk march, with Negroes walking in pairs, many carrying American flags, started from NAACP headquarters.

About 100 Negroes joined in the march. Others trailed in cars.

Police blocked the march with a line of officers across their path, forcing the Negroes to swerve into a side street. Motorcycle officers then blocked off both ends of the side street and began loading the Negroes remaining in the march—about 40 of them—into trucks for the trip to a special detention center. Part of the crowd had dispersed as the march veered into the side street.

A little earlier, in a move to ease the rising tension, Mayor Allen Thompson and the City Commission had agreed to three of eight Negro demands.

The agreements: 1. Hiring Negro policemen for patrolling Negro sections. 2. Hiring Negro school crossing guards for Negro schools. 3. Upgrading Negro city employees.

The mayor flatly rejected a key proposal that the city join in forming a biracial committee to work toward easing racial problems.

However, Thompson said there would be further negotiations on some of the demands. As for school desegregation, he said the city would abide by court decisions in pending suits.

Wilkins was charged with restraint of trade. He was released on $1,000 bond, along with Medgar Evers, 37, of Jackson. They were arrested with Wilkins on the same charge.

John Glenn Ends Visit To Japan

Trip Did Much To Counteract Bad Publicity

TOKYO (AP) — John H. Glenn Jr., the first American to orbit the earth, has wowed them in Japan.

The personable Marine lieutenant colonel wound up a 25-day visit this weekend, leaving behind a record that gave the U.S. image in Japan a tremendous boost.

Many Japanese agreed his trip did much to counteract unfavorable publicity for the United States about such things as racial strife and nuclear weapons tests. Glenn received great amounts of newspaper space and television time.

There was one marked contrast between Glenn's visit and that of Maj. Yuri Gagarin, Soviet spaceman who visited this country a year ago.

The Japanese were pleased to see Gagarin, but he was kept under close wraps by accompanying Russian officials.

Glenn traveled casually. He talked with groups ranging from school kids to scientists and high officials. He was accessible to almost anyone who wanted to ask him a question.

The contrast led the influential economic newspaper Nihon Keizai to comment in an editorial:

"Maj. Gagarin was in uniform from the beginning to the end of his visit. He was accompanied by several Soviet officials all the time,and his actions and speeches gave the impression that he was under some restrictions. His replies to questions were reserved and he skillfully dodged the most important points.

"In contrast to this, Lt. Col. Glenn was dressed informally in a civilian suit wearing a bow tie of his liking. He was active and decisive in his attitude, giving the impression of dauntlessness. Everything about him was openly candid.

Question Safety Of Nuclear Ship

BALTIMORE (AP)—The safety of the immobilized nuclear ship Savannah was questioned by its former engineers in a telegram to President Kennedy, the Baltimore Sun said Saturday night.

Writing for the Sunday editions, Maritime Editor Helen Delich Bentley said the telegram had been sent to Kennedy Saturday on behalf of the engineers by Jesse M. Calhoon, president of the National Marine Engineers Beneficial Association, AFL-CIO.

Calhoon told the President that there are no licensed engineers aboard the vessel, now docked in Galveston, Tex., even though atomic fuel still is in the ship's reactors.

Calhoon said Babcock & Wilson, Inc., the company that developed the reactors and the company to which the government has now assigned the responsibility of the ship, has called upon one of the discharged engineers "to return to the vessel to teach the Babcock & Wilcox personnel how to take care of the plant."

Resignations of the atomic engineers aboard the ship were accepted May 13, and the engineers were ordered off the Savannah after they had refused to operate the reactor without a contract. At issue is an arbitrator's award that would have tied the salaries of the engineers to those of deck officers, had the atomic engineers accepted it.

Condition Still Grave

Pope John Battles Death

Briefly Emerges from His Coma

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John XXIII lingered in life early Sunday, the third day of his mortal struggle. His condition remained grave, but his stout heart stubbornly resisted the end his doctors said is inevitable.

The Roman Catholic pontiff, 81, again emerged briefly from the coma that had gripped him most of his hours of crisis, the Vatican Press Office reported at 2:40 a.m. (8:40 p.m. EST Saturday).

It said the Pope had experienced a few moments of lucidity, his pulse was good, and his temperature had dropped to 100.4 degrees after having risen to 103.1, Saturday night.

"His condition remains stationary in its gravity," the announcement added.

A spokesman said there was no sign of immediate danger, indicating that the Vatican felt the Pope had hours — possibly days — to live. Prelates relaxed their vigil.

The pontiff's doctors remained at his side as the Pope rested on four white pillows on a cast-iron bed, slipping back and forth between coma and consciousness.

Sources reported early Saturday evening that the doctors feared pneumonia could set in, but there was no indication of such a complication early Sunday.

The pontiff's three brothers and sister also watched over him. The sister, Assunta, 76, dabbed his forehead with a dampened handkerchief.

The pontiff's doctors late Saturday night had ordered suspension of all visits, even those by cardinals, but the Vatican Press Office said Archbishop Angelo Dell'Acqua, Vatican substitute secretary of state, had entered the papal apartment at 2:15 a.m. and left a few minutes later. His mission was not disclosed.

Outside in St. Peter's Square, below the papal apartment, thousands prayed for a miracle. His doctors said that was the only thing that could save the tenant farmer's son who became the spiritual ruler of the world's half billion Roman Catholics.

Men of many faiths around the world prayed for his recovery. But the Vatican held out no hope that he could fight back from the onslaught of a stomach tumor, hemorrhages and peritonitis, an inflammation of the abdomen.

His doctors were surprised that the pontiff had held on so long since he took a critical turn early Friday, received the last sacraments of the church and quietly asserted his readiness to give up his life, devoted to Christian unity and world peace.

"I have been able to follow the course of my death step by step," he told a prelate in a period of lucidity. "Now I am going sweetly toward the end."

Brownie Troop 397, Heber Hunt School, and Intermediate Troop 311, Whittier School, chartered a school bus and took a trip to Jefferson City recently.

They visited the Capitol and were conducted on a tour. Because of rain, they ate lunch in the bus.

The group went to the Girl Scout office and to Cole County Museum. At the museum, the girls saw items from Missouri's past, some as old as 250 years, which were brought from Europe by early settlers. There was a display of inauguration gowns of governors' wives, including that of Mrs. Dalton.

The children's room on the third floor, with old-fashioned dolls and toys, was another spot visited.

In the afternoon the group appeared on KRCG-TV.

A hamburger supper was served at a restaurant and the group returned home.

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: My problem may seem trivial to you but it is breaking my heart.

Ever since I can remember I have looked forward to the biggest social event of a teenager's life—the Junior-Senior Prom. I used to dream about what I would wear and how I would have my hair fixed. I even planned things to say, and how to say goodnight to my folks when we left the house.

Well, all my dreams are shattered because nobody has asked me to go. All my friends have been invited to go and I've been hoping that maybe a few of the boys who have been pleasant to me were just bashful, and holding off. But now I am sure I will not be asked at all.

How can I hold back the tears when I hear the girls discussing their gowns and all the last minute details? I hate for them to pity me but I am sure they are doing that right now. Please give me some help. I am—CRUSHED.

Dear Crushed: If you knew of the number of letters I have received similar to yours you wouldn't feel so "alone." And this is one of the sad things about proms or any special event where some people are bound to be left out. It DOES hurt.

But it isn't the end of the world, Honey. You will survive the blow and it will fade from memory. Life can be tough and disappointments and heartaches come to everyone sooner or later. Nobody escapes. So consider this disappointment as one of the trials that must be faced. And remember, it's not what happens to us but how we take it that counts.

Dear Ann Landers: It's obvious that you don't know anything about brewing tea—or the proper use of teabags.

When a woman wrote and asked what to do with the sloppy-looking thing, you said a guest should not be faced with the problem—that the hostess should remove the tea bag in the kitchen.

The idea of the tea bag is so that each person can brew tea to his own taste. Some people like it weak, and others like it brisk. What sense is there in buying a tea bag if it's going to be removed in the kitchen? It's a good thing you aren't the food editor or you'd starve to death.—TEA LOVER.

Dear Lover: Many food editors who are NOT starving to death wrote to tell me I was off base with my answer. Your letter, however, was the sweetest. Thank you. So, three lashes with a wet tea bag for me. And thank you for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been a widow for ten years. The man next door lost his wife about a year ago. Our relationship was always a pleasant one. A few months ago this man began to show an interest in me. He began by inviting me to an art exhibit, along with his sister and brother-in-law. We had a delightful evening.

He invited me to other affairs after that usually with his sister and brother-in-law along, but sometimes alone. I got the definite impression that his fondness for me was increasing and that he would ask me to marry him. I would have said yes.

Suddenly he stopped calling and it was as if he had dropped off the planet. I thought perhaps he might be ill, so I called him. He said, bluntly, "My sister felt I was becoming too interested in you and that people were talking. I thought it best to terminate the relationship."

I am heartsick. What do you suggest?—M.R.T.

Dear M.R.T.: A man who could be so easily influenced by his sister is no red-hot bargain. You've lost nothing, believe me.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DECORATOR'S HINTS

The three methods of Color Scheming . . . CONTRASTED —This method uses colors, in various values from light to dark that lie opposite each other on the color wheel. Contrasted color schemes are interesting, active, informal, and size decreasing—most appropriate for casual modern, Early American and French Provincial settings.

RELATED — Related color schemes use neighboring colors that lie side by side on the color wheel. These are subtle, surprising, unbelievable combinations—pink with orange, blues with green — that create a restful, spacious, elegant atmosphere — the classic choice for contemporary or formal traditional settings.

MONOCHROMATIC — With this method an entire room, even a whole house, can be done in different values from light to dark of the same basic color. Metals, touches of black or white or both are important here. The one-color plan brings spaciousness, unity, tranquility, and is most often used in the contemporary decor.

Initial 4-H Peace Corps projects are in Brazil, Uruguay, and Venezuela. Applicants for similar projects are needed immediately.

For further information contact the University Extension Center or write to 4-H Peace Corps Projects, National 4-H Club Foundation, 7100 Connecticut Avenue, Washington 15, D.C. quested. Although voters will be asked to pass on a $3-million bond issue, federal aid could cut the amount of bonds to be issued to $2.4-million.

Cities can be granted federal assistance up to 30 per cent of total cost of new or improved facilities but a federal aid limit of $600,000 may prevent Sedalia receiving the full 30 per cent in assistance normally available.

"More for Sedalia"

Mayor Studer said he had been advised by consulting engineers that Sedalia would not be limited to the $600,000 in assistance normally afforded each city. This, he said, is due to the fact Sedalia has three separate facilities to be improved and will, therefore, be entitled to the full 30 per cent in aid totaling around $900,000. This would reduce the bonded indebtedness on the improvements to $2.1 million.

No federal aid for such facilities is granted until requesting cities certify that funds are available, that a suitable site or sites have been acquired and that a desire exists to begin construction immediately. Federal officials also require approval of plans by the state's Water Pollution Board. Such plans are also scrutinized by federal officials.

Mayor Studer told The Democrat-Capital Sedalia's bonded indebtedness status should place voters in a favorable frame of mind on this bond issue when it is presented. He pointed out the city's indebtedness is only 2.88 per cent of the total assessed valuation of the city. The city valuation is $29,600,000 and it is in debt less than $1-million—about $856,000.

Laws Play Role

Federal and state laws governing water pollution will probably play a major role in the election. Laws place the issue in a "pass it or else," category.

Cities found deficient in sewage treatment facilities to the extent that streams are being polluted are advised by state ond federal authorities to take necessary action to remedy the situation or face a fine of $100 a day.

Cities are normally given three opportunities to pass a bond issue or make necessary financial arrangements for improvements before such a fine is levied. In Sedalia's case both agencies have been prodding for completed action since 1959.

System Once Best

In the late 1920s $1-million in improvements were made and at that time a national magazine stated in essence that Sedalia had one of the best sewer systems for a town its size in the nation. In 1947 a bond issue in the amount of $1,075,000 was passed. The balance on those bonds stand at $228,000 as of May 31 and will be retired in 1967.

Missouri Revised Statutes provides that such a bond issue requires a two-thirds majority to pass and that revenue bonds can be isuued at a rate not to exceed six per cent, and must be retired in 20 years.

Souphanouvong's leftists have never permitted the commission to inspect their lines and this has hamstrung its activity, though the other factions have cooperated.

The United States, which pulled out all its troops last fall, drew this propaganda attack:

"The American government must immediately stop interfering in Laos' internal affairs, withdraw American military personnel and halt illegal introduction of American arms into the country."

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A 2-year-old suburban Kirkwood boy died in St. Joseph Hospital Friday night, a day after he swallowed pesticide.

Summertime Theme For Rose Show

"Summertime," was the theme of the 175th Annual Rose Show of the Sedalia Rose Society held in the Smith-Cotton High School Cafeteria Friday. The theme was taken from the well known opera of George Gershwin, "Porgy and Bess." The arrangement classes were designated by using lines from the familiar lullaby—"An' the cotton is high;" "Hush, little baby, don't you cry;" "With Daddy an' Mammy standin' by" and nine others.

All the classes were well filled in this division of the show with a total of 51. There was a wide and interesting variety of interpretations of the class titles. The top honor for best artistic design of the show went to Mrs. Wilford Acker, 800 East 24th, with her interpretation of "My Daddy an' Mammy standin' by," a design using pink and red roses with green plant material, arranged in a pair of medium shade green containers on a black built-up block base.

A section of this division that was open only to members of the Sedalia Rose Society required that roses used in the arrangements must have been grown by the designer. Winners in each of the three classes were awarded a potted blooming rose. Mrs. Wilford Acker was the winner of first and second places of the three class winners and Mrs. Wilson Harbit, 1804 West 18th, took third place honors.

In the individual rose bloom specimen division of the show there were 214 stems. The show officials said this number was less than in previous shows because of the unseasonable early blooming. The quality of the blooms appeared to make up for much that was lacking in the number that were exhibited.

The Queen of the Show, that is, the best hybrid tea rose bloom in the show at the time of judging, went to Mrs. Oscar H. DeWolf, 1115 West Broadway, on her exhibition of the rose bloom "Show Girl," a very attractive, medium pink colored bloom. Also with this distinction went the American Rose Society, Gold Certificate Award. The second and third best hybrid tea rose blooms in the show, receiving as awards the Silver and Bronze Certificates, from the American Rose Society, went to Oscar H. DeWolf, 1115 West Broadway, with a bloom of the roses named "Nocturne" and "Helen Traubel."

Similar awards were given by the American Rose Society for the best, second and third floribunda spray. The gold certificate went to Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Brummet, 1401 East 14th, with their showing of the rose "Ma Perkins," the silver and bronze to Oscar H. DeWolf with his showing of the roses "Ivory Fashion" and "Voque."

The Edna May Ferguson Award, a silver bowl, for the best collection of three hybrid tea rose blooms or different varieties, was won by Edward E. Brummet.

The DeWolf Trophy for the best dark red rose in the show was awarded to the donor, Oscar H. DeWolf, with his rose bloom "Nocturne" which also won the silver certificate.

The Perry L. Strople Award, a gold cup, for the best Peace Rose in the show was won by Wilford Acker, 800 East 24th.

The Hybrid Tea collection award was won by Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Brummet with their showing of a bloom from "Audie Murphy," 'Christian Dior," "Chrysler Imperial" and "Volcano."

The Grandaflora collection award was won also by Mr. and Mrs. Brummet with their showing of a bloom from "Star Fire," "Corrousel," El Capitan" and "Queen Elizabeth."

The Florabunda collection award was won by Wilford Acker with his showing of a spray from "Sarabanda," "Circus," "Masquerade" and "Vogue."

New Team's Musical Is About Ready

NEW YORK (AP)—That eagerly-awaited first musical by Richard Rodgers and Alan Jay Lerner is almost ready.

More than two years have elapsed since the partnership formed, but Lerner wants it known that time hasn't been a-wasting.

He has been mewed up in his cubbyhole den, thrashing out those basic ingredients, plot and dialogue.

"About par for me," he declares, expressing satisfaction at "I Picked a Daisy."

Rodgers, a man with a long reputation for rapid composition, has deliberately tarried in the creative process so that Lerner could supply polished lyrics for necessary song.

"Unlike Frederick Loewe, Mr. Rodger prefers to have the lyrics first," Lerner notes one difference between his former and present team-mates.

Rodgers recently returned from a swift European swing, and the veteran tunesmith should be wrapping up the remaining third of his duties within a few weeks.

Starring Barbara Harris and Robert ("Wagon Train") Horton, "I Picked a Daisy" is slotted for start of rehearsals in late summer, followed by a tour and Broadway arrival around Christmas. It is being produced by the two authors and directed by Gower Champion.

Originally the premiere was announced for a couple of months ago and speculation rippled through gossip-hungry show business over the delay.

"I was upset about the rumors for a while," says Lerner, who at 44 is sensitively aware of the spotlight attention focussed on this alliance. He has collaborated on seven previous White Way projects, including the fabulous "My Fair Lady." Rodgers, 16 years his senior, has taken part in 36.

"What actually happened," reports the writer-lyricist, "is that I started working on one idea and dropped it after five months. As a matter of fact, I'd done that before—with 'My Fair Lady' for months.

"I simply felt this idea wasn't for me—it developed in too cynical a vein for someone whose metier is romantic comedy.

With Rodgers whole-hearted agreement, he went hunting another theatrical topic, and turned up the idea for "this large delicate show."

His sepulchral voice and rolling oratory frequently are subjected to such unkind cuts as "oleaginous," "homegenous prose" and "ooze."

Dirksen, an enthusiastic debater in high school and colleage, took a tip more than 40 years ago from the famed golden-throated orator, William Jennings Bryan.

"Talk to the rear row and the people in between will hear you," Bryan told him.

Political opponents remain largely uncharmed by Dirksen's prose. Responsible for effecting Republican compromise with the Democrats in power, Dirksen has been called "a flip-flop artist" for championing "the art of the possible" in politics.

"That goes back to Aristotle," Dirksen says in defense. "When a proposition has been beaten out on the anvil of discussion, you go for what you can achieve."

One critic observed that Dirksen, in his congressional career, changed his mind 31 times on military affairs, 62 times on foreigh policy and 70 times on agriculture.

Dirksen's reply:

"Anybody worth his salt in public service cannot ignore the fact that you are constantly confronted with change—a changing world...

"How silly a man would be if he doesn't make the differentitation."

Senate Republican leader since 1959, Dirksen proclaimed when John F. Kennedy won the White House that "no ill-digested stuff will be rushed through Congress."

When his frequent leadership consultations at the White House get him into political hot water with Republicans back home, Dirksen is equal to the occasion, even making the situation work for him.

During last year's bitter campaign in which he won reelection to his third Senate term, Dirksen deliberately let it slip that the President had told him:

"Why, Ev, what are you worried about? You know you've got it in the bag."

A furious Rep. Sidney R. Yates, Dirksen's Democratic opponent whom Kennedy had publicly endorsed, called the alleged Kennedy quote "an outright and contemptible lie."

Dirksen cocked his shaggy head to one side like an innocent cherub and said meekly, "It was a jocular thing said off the record and I'm afraid it should have been recognized as a confidence."

As to the charge that he was a liar, Dirksen went on softly, it reminded him of a story attributed to Abraham Lincoln:

"If you call a sheep's tail a leg, how many legs would a sheep have?"

"Five," said Lincoln's companion.

"Oh, no," Dirksen quoted Lincoln. "Calling a sheep's tail a leg doesn't make it one."

Grass and leaves burning in the yard of the Pleasant Hill Church, Route 2, Sedalia, threatened the church and other outbuildings at 11:58 a.m. Friday.

Pettis County firemen answered the alarm and used one booster line from the fire truck to douse the fire. One small building had caught fire. Damage was listed as slight.

Firemen said the blaze was believed to have originated from a cigarette thrown from a passing car.

Raymond E. Hays, 33, Route 4, Sedalia sustained injuries to his right forearm in a one-car accident early Saturday morning on Highway 65, ½ mile north of Sedalia.

According to Trooper Richard Joos, who investigated the accident, a 1956 Pontiac was being driven south by Joseph W. Miller, 28, Kansas City, when reportedly he saw a northbound car in his lane. Miller pulled over to the extreme right of the road in order to avoid a collision, Joos said.

Hays, a passenger in the Miller car, apparently had his right arm resting on the outside of the car and it struck a sign board along the side of the road.

Hays was taken to Bothwell Hospital where it was learned that he had received a laceration on the right hand and a fracture of the right forearm. He was admitted to the hospital and was treated by Dr. E. M. Braverman.

The left front of the car was damaged. Some damage occurred to the post of the stop sign.

MEMBER, THE ORDER OF THE GOLDEN RAD

Man Captured After Attempted Rape Saturday

WAYNESVILLE, Mo. (AP) — A man was captured Saturday night after he tried to rape a farm woman, then ran off with her 3-year-old daughter near Waynesville, the highway patrol said.

The child was found in the man's car and was rushed to a hospital to determine whether she had been harmed.

The man, apparently a soldier from Ft. Leonard Wood, was taken to the post hospital in an ambulance. The patrol said it hadn't learned whether he was wounded or just drunk.

The patrol said it had this sketchy reort:

About 6 p.m. a man stopped his car on count route Y about four miles north of U.S. 66 and tried to entice 16-year-old Darlene McCouch off a horse she was riding. He drove away when her father approached from a field.

Thirty minutes later the man stopped at the home of Mrs. Helen Watson, 36, in the same area and asked to use the bathroom. She refused to let him in the house. He tried to assault her, but she fought him off.

The man then grabbed her daughter, Mary, and fled with the child in the car.

The patrol immediately started an intensive search.

At 7:13 p.m. the patrol got a call from a citizen who said he saw a man lying near a car on M 28, four miles north of U.S. 66

The patrol found the little girl in the back seat of the car, and the man was on the ground.

The car's license plate was covered with leaves, but a Ft. Wood sticker was visible on the bumper.

Cardinals Trim Giants' Margin

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Surging St. Louis cut San Francisco's National League lead to one game as Cardinal hitters delivered in the clutch and Ron Taylor spaced 10 hits to beat the Giants Saturday 7-4.

Led by Stan Musial, who drove in three runs on three consecutive singles, the Cardinals jumped on Giant starter Jack Fisher for a run in the first.

Musial drove in a run in the first and drilled another run-scoring single in the Cardinals' big second. St. Louis got four in the second on a walk by George Altman, Tim McCarver's single, Curt Flood's double and Musial's single.

Candy Spots, Chateaugay At Belmont

NEW YORK (AP)—Candy Spots and Chateaugay, each owning one jewel on the triple crown, will slug it out in the rubber match of the Belmont Stakes, with Candy Spots favored.

Candy Spots won the Preakness after Chateaugay had scored an upset in the Kentucky Derby. They're the two top choices for the June 8 running of the Belmont at Aqueduct. But some other colt may come along to mess up the 3-year-old situation just as it was last year, and in many other campaigns going back to the days after the Civil War when the three events began.

Last year, for example, Decidedly won the Kentucky Derby, Greek Money the Preakness and Jaipur the Belmont. Aside from a handful who swept all three events, only 11 horses have won both the Preakness and Belmont, only six the Derby and the Belmont.

One thing is certain. The Belmont will be raced for the first time at Aqueduct, the $33-million monument to modern racing on the subway to the Rockaways.

Belmont Park, which opened in 1905, is closed in 1963. Engineers say the grandstand is ready to collapse, and until and if they rebuild, all racing in the New York metropolitan area is confined to Aqueduct.

Rex C. Ellsworth's Candy Spots was the favorite at Louisville May 4 for the Derby, but finished third behind John W. Galbreath's Chateaugay and Cain Hoy Stable's Never Bend.

He was the favorite again in Baltimore May 18, and ran like his backers hoped he would in Louisville. He won the Preakness, with Chateaugay second and Never Bend third. Never Bend has a strained ankle, and Capt. Harry F. Guggenheim is resting his 1962 champion 2-year-old for a few weeks.

Belmont fields are usually small and if half a dozen show up June 8 for the 95th running of the grueling 1½-mile triple crown finale, it will be nothing unusual.

King Takes 36-Hole Lead In Tourney

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Husky Claude King, former prep football coach, grabbed the 36-hole lead of the $55,000 Speedway Festival Open Golf Tournament Saturday with a 6-under-par 65 for a 132 total and a one-stroke edge over Fred Hawkins.

Hawkins, the El Paso, Tex., veteran, who hasn't won since taking the 1956 Oklahoma City Open, blew a 4-foot birdie putt on the last hole and wound up with a 33-36—69 for 133.

King, 30-year-old former coach at Virginia Beach, Va., High, who joined the pro circuit 17 months ago and never has been better than 16th in a tourney, fashioned a 32-33 against the Speedway course par of 35-36—71. He canned seven birdies on putts ranging from 40 feet to 18 inches.

In addition to Hawkins, there was a big group of par wreckers snapping at King's heels in the race for the $10,000 first prize in the 72-hole event.

Strapping Bill Collins of Grossinger, N.Y., recovering from the effects of a bad back, posted 134 with a second round of 34-33—67.

Also at 134 was the pre-tourney favorite, Tony Lema, who got on the pace with a 34-30—64.

Bracketed at 135 were Miller Barber of San Antonio, Tex., with a 68; Chi Chi Rodriguez of Puerto Rico, 68; Tommy Aaron, Gainesville, Ga., with 64; Jerry Edwards, Fort Worth, Tex., 66, and seasoned Julius Boros, 67.

Lowest round of the day was by the rank outsider, Jerry Pittman, Tulsa, Okla., who fashioned a 33-30—63, one shot short of the tournament record for the 6,467-yard layout. Aaron, who lost a sudden death playoff to Lema for the recent Memphis Open title, coupled 32s on a card that included two eagle putts of 30 and 5 feet.

Minnesota Routs Detroit, 7 to 1

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) —Hot-hitting shortstop Zoilo Versalles ripped four hits, three of them doubles, and rookie southpaw Jim Roland won a reprieve from being sent to the minors Saturday as Minnesota routed Detroit 7-1.

Roland, 20-year-old bonus prize from North Carolina, has been wild largely because the Twins can't work him enough. Saturday, however, he walked only four in upping his record to 3-1 and won his second complete game in the majors. He yielded five hits and struck out six.

Minnesota backed Roland with a 10-hit attack featuring four hits by Versalles. He raised his average to .299, tops for the Twins. He leads the American League with 16 doubles.

White Sox Whip Red Sox, 3 to 1

CHICAGO (AP) — Taking advantage of young Dave Morehead's wildness, the Chicago White Sox defeated the Boston Red Sox 3-1 Saturday for their fourth straight victory.

Morehead, an 18-year-old right-hander suffered his fourth loss against three victories and left the game in the fourth inning after yielding two hits and five walks.

He walked Floyd Robinson with the bases loaded in the third for Chicago's first run and departed when he walked the first two men to face him in the fourth. The two walks resulted in the decisive runs, one scoring on Mike Hershberger's infield bounder and the other on a single by Nelson Fox.

New Appeal For Little League Uniforms Is Made

Another appeal is being made by the Little League officials for the return of baseball uniforms. The past week, five uniforms were returned and the officials appreciate the parents' efforts for "digging them out" and returning them for some other youngster to use.

There are still some Little League baseball uniforms, others which have just the baseball pants where the boys wore "T" shirts and were allowed to keep the shirts. They, are, no doubt, too small for the boy who wore them a year ago or even several years back.

If any uniforms or trousers are found during this spring cleaning, they can be returned to Russell Brothers or call the store and they'll have someone pick them up.

Sports Scraps

By D. KELLY SCRUTON

THE STORY has been told, and told over and over during the past number of years, of finances for the various summer athletic activities, Little League, Babe Ruth, Ban Johnson and now Connie Mack. It's a story which apparently many parents never paid any attention to until their youngsters moved into one portion or another of the activities.

And I anticipate the story will be asked again and again as other youngsters enter into the various leagues.

Only this past week a mother of a boy who is entering the Babe Ruth League sent word to me, "Would you do something along the line of explaining how the leagues operate — financially? People seem to think the Park Board pays the light bill, that uniforms and other equipment come from some unknown source."

Actually the Park Board does not pay the light bills, nor do they pay for the equipment, but I must say the board goes a lot longer way on cooperation than given credit for. As an example, a ball club or league using Liberty Park or any of the other lighted parks under their supervision, pays for the lights at cost for the time they are on. But that is often a few minutes over and many times a lot oftener than the teams realize — but they pay the designated time. Bills last year paid by the teams and leagues didn't meet the actual light costs, not to mention the replacement of bulbs and new lighting equipment. And they do other things to help out.

Uniforms are usually paid for by the sponsoring business firm, but then repairs and other costs which come up are paid from the funds of the league. The leagues have to furnish the baseballs, catching equipment, bats, and ever-so-many items that are costly. People do not realize the actual cost of these youthful programs — but IT IS MONEY which is often hard to get.

Tag days, dances, concession stands, contributions are asked of Sedalians from time to time, and if you do not think so, it gives the officials of all these leagues plenty of headaches not to mention some worry if they are going to be able to stretch out the funds for the season. It's a problem that not many parents of these youngsters participating in the program realizes and it's time those who do start pitching in with some manpower to help out.

Right here I might call attention to a father who has a son in either Babe Ruth or Connie Mack. I think it was to Babe Ruth several weeks ago that he presented a check for $50 to help out. He is a newcomer to Sedalia and resides in Missle-Manor, but told officials, "Ill do all I can as it is a great program and I want my boy to have a part in it." Of course there are a lot of parents who would like to kick in that much and can't, but if they can't they should give manpower to the league.

—o—

FRANK ERVIN, former Sedalian, rode through fog and on a heavy track at Roosevelt Raceway, Wednesday night, to win the Realization trot with a purse of $85,663. He was in the sulky behind Sprite Rodney who was bought by the Eaton Ridge Farms of Lexington, Ken., for $100,000, two years ago.

Some of the top harness horse owners figured it was a mighty big price to pay for a horse, but he has already won over $50,000 and with the purse Wednesday night is not out of the red. Not a buy at all, especially when the horse is retired and goes to the breeding farm it will continue to pull in the dollars for the Stables in fathering what is expected to be fine race horse stock.

Ervin, in a telephone call to his brother Colie, who is the former secretary of the Missouri State Fair and now owner and operator with Mrs. Ervin of Colie's Drive Inn on South Limit, described the race.

Frank told brother Colie that it was raining to some extent, the track was heavy, and when the starting gate gave the go sign, he was in one fog and another around the track. So dense was the fog he could not see any of the other horses, and breaking through at one point didn't observe any horses in the area, and then back into another bank. "Going into the turn for the last quarter, it was denser than dense, and I was only hoping I could stay between the rails and not hit the fence. I was almost sure I was ahead, but didn't know until after we crossed the finish line.'

It seems fog is playing a big part in athletics this year. A softball team won a game in the fog this past week when six runs were scored off of "fog error."

Brown Wins Prize

Tnoy Brown, 14, son of Mrs. Naomi Brown, 1500 South Beacon, was the winner of the first prize for selling the most tickets to the recently held Babe Ruth League dance. The dance was given to raise funds to help support and operate the league for the coming season.

One-Hit Shutout Defeats Phils

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Southpaw Dick Ellsworth suht out Philadelphia with a one-hit — a bunt single by Wes Covington in the fifth—Saturday and the Chicago Cubs beat the Phillies 2-0 on Andre Rodgers' home run and Ernie Banks' double.

It was a surprise fifth-inning bunt to the mound that outfielder Covington beat out by a step that spoiled Ellsworth's bid for a no-hitter.

Ellsworth, 7-3, who has the lowest earned run average in the majors, was just as stingy Saturday, but sloppy fielding by his shortstop and second baseman got him into trouble twice—in the fourth and the sixth.

In the sixth, the Phils loaded the bases, on two errors and a walk, but Ellsworth fanned Covington to end the threat.

Maris Homers As Yanks Whip Indians 5 to 2

CLEVELAND (AP) — New York's ace right-hander Jim Bouton belted a three-run double and teammate Roger Maris whacked a homer in the Yankees 5-2 conquest Saturday of the Cleveland Indians.

The victory, New York's 14th in the last 17 games, carried the Yanks into first place in the American League on percentage points.

The 24-year-old Bouton ran his record to 7-1, batting in four runs in the process. Dick Donovan, 2-4, was the loser and allowed six hits and four runs in the eight innings he worked.

Maris tied the game with his homer and figured in a spectacular play that kept the Indians from taking the lead.

Donovan retired 13 Yanks in a row before Maris smacked his eighth homer in the fifth.

In the sixth, New York surged ahead 4-1 on three runs, all unearned.

Babe Ruth Season Will Open Monday

Monday night opens the 1963 Babe Ruth baseball season under the new lights of the Liberty Park baseball diamond. The first game is slated for 6 p. m. preceded by opening ceremonies, and the second game follows at 8 o'clock.

The first game brings together the Adco and Hillcrest Lanes teams of the American League while the National League opener is between the Browns Auto Supply and Freeze Dairy teams.

The addition of another team brings Babe Ruth up to eight teams. The eight teams have been divided into two four team leagues. There will be two games played each Monday night, one in the American and the other in the National League.

After the first rounds have been played the All-Stars will have a night of play, getting tuned up for the local district tournament. The second round will continue after the district tournament has been completed.

The opening ceremonies will begin at 5:45 o'clock with Cliff Barr, president of Babe Ruth League and the Rev. W. F. Strickert, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, making up the opening battery.

The Babe Ruth League anticipates one of its most successful seasons for 1963 with the largest turnout of boys for baseball in that age bracket in years. With the gradual advancement of Little Leaguers, the bigger leagues are being swamped with ball players and they will be growing bigger and bigger as the seasons roll by.

Lease Is Discussed At Meeting

KANSAS CITY (AP)—City officials and Charles O. Finley, owner of the Kansas City Athletics met Saturday to talk about the lease on Municipal Stadium, but the session didn't last long.

Mayor Ilus Davis said the meeting lasted just 30 seconds.

Finley estimated it lasted four and one half minutes.

"Our position at the moment is that of a landlord with a non-paying tenant," the mayor reported.

Just a few minutes before the new city administration took office last April, the outgoing City Council approved a contract under which the club would pay $1 a year for the next two seasons. Then for the next five years it would be $1 a year plus 5 per cent of the gross receipts if paid admissions exceed 950,000. Also included would be the option of renewing the contract on the same basis for two 7-year periods.

The incoming City Council declared the contract null and void. But Finley claims it is still in effect.

As Saturday's meeting opened, Councilman John McGuire, chairman of the baseball committee, asked for rent now due the city.

Finley declined to discuss the matter. That ended the session.

Under terms of the old lease $20,000 would have been due the city May 15.

Finley said he was not against paying the rent but is looking for reimbursement for more than "$400,000 of my own money spent to make the stadium comfortable for the fans and at the same time more beautiful and safe."

Friend Retires 17 as Pirates Trounce Mets

NEW YORK (AP)—Pittsburgh's Bob Friend retired the first 17 men in succession Saturday en route to a two-hitter while the Pirates lowered the boom on the New York Mets' pitching in a 10-1 romp.

Friend had a perfect game going until he slipped and fell attempting to field pinch hitter Ed Kranepool's tap in front of the plate with two out in the sixth. Jim Pagliaroni picked up the ball, but his throw was too late.

The Mets got a second hit, Chico Fernandez's single, in the eighth and scored with the help of an error by Mazeroski and a sacrifice fly.

Burdette fired a five-hitter in boosting his season record to 4-5. Nottebart's record dropped to 5-3 in a game that lasted only 1 hour, 47 minutes.

925 Golfers Scheduled To Compete

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP)—A total of 925 pro golfers are scheduled to shoot for 86 places in the 1963 Professional Golfers Association Championship in the next couple of weeks, making it one of the world's toughest tournaments to get into.

Because of a long list of exemptions, fewer than one out of 10 of the club pros who form the bulk of the entry list has a chance to make it through the sectional rounds into the main tournament—once known as the club pros' private party.

The starting field in the PGA Championship, to be played at the DAC Country Club in Dallas, Tex., July 18-21, is about 168. But nearly half the places go to players who are exempt from qualifying for one reason or another.

Heading this list, of course, is Gary Player, the South African strong boy who won the PGA title last year. Then there's an assortment of ex-champions, Ryder Cup players and stars of the PGA tour who have earned exemptions. Among them are 11 Approved Tournament Players—nonmembers who were given special invitations because of their play on the tour.

Other exemptions go to the winners of championships of the PGA's 34 local sections. Of these 27 have entered the big tournament, including such well-known players as Tony Lema, Johnny Pott, Dave Ragan, Art Wall and Bo Wininger. Three didn't enter and three sectional titles still are to be decided.

Only 10 of the local sections will hold their 36-hole qualifyin rounds on the "official" date, June 10. Others will be scattered from June 3 through June 18.

Mickey Wright Takes Lead in Golf Tourney

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP)—Mickey Wright, leading women's golf in both money and tournament victories, fired a 5-under-par 68 with a fantastic putting exhibition Saturday to take over the lead at 36 holes in the $8,000 Babe Zaharias Open.

Miss Wright, the tall Dallas blonde seeking her fourth tournament victory in a row, had five birdies and no trouble on any hole as she displaced her strongest rival, Marilynn Smith, with 140.

Clifford Ann Creed, the 98-pound Louisiana freshman on the tour, also stroked a 5-under-par 68 and had a 141 total to give her second place.

Miss Smith, who led the first round with a 71, saw her game go completely awry and she soared to a 75 that knocked her down to a tie for fourth at 146.

Another darkhorse, Judy Kimball, had a 70 to move up from eleventh to third with 144.

Grambling College Is Favorite

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP)Grambling College of Louisiana, sporting a 25-2 record, is expected to win the championship of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics baseball tournament, opening in St. Joseph Monday.

The eight-team, double elimination tourney will end next Friday, June 7.

The first round pairings, with team records in parentheses, are:

11 a.m. –California Western of San Diego (24-4) vs. Lewis College of Lockport, Ill. (14-5).

2 p.m.—Grafbling (25-2) vs. East Carolina (21-5).

6 p.m.–Sam Houston State of Texas (28-8) vs. California State of California, Pa. (12-4).

8:30 p.m.–Mayville State of North Dakota (14-5) vs. Winona State of Minnesota (16-3).

A new champion is assured, because the 1962 titlist, Georgia Southern, bowed to East Carolina in a district playoff.

Sam Houston will be playing in its fourth national tournament, and coming back for the second straight time are Lewis College, Winona and California State of Pennsylvania.

Several top NAIA athletes will be playing, including Ed Spiezio of Lewis, a third baseman batting .491; Robert Williams of Grambling, a pitcher with a 9-1 record; Jon Kosidowski of Winona, who has a .410 average, driven in 14 runs and hit four homers.

The last team to qualify was Mayville State, which beat Washburn of Topeka, Kan., in a doubleheader last Wednesday. Leading the Mayville Comets will be catcher Charles Margerum, a senior hitting at a .412 clip.

Another player drawing attention of baseball scouts is California Western's Chuck Leaf, a pitcher with a 12-2 record. He also leads his club in home runs with seven.

Spicy Living Captures Mother Goose Stakes

NEW YORK (AP)—Spicy Living, nosed out Smart Deb in the $91,725 Mother Goose Stakes Saturday at Aqueduct after a furious stretch duel and gained a second leg on the triple crown for 3-year-old fillies.

It was the third straight stakes score for Spicy Living and jockey Jimmy Combest, and the toughest yet for the fleet bay daughter of Gallant Man.

Braulio Baeza on Smart Deb claimed interference in the stretch run. Movies of the race, however, showed there was no contact at any time and the stewards quickly dismissed the claim.

Smart Deb, owned by Mrs. Russell Reineman and a leader in the 2-year-old set last fall, fought it out right down to the wire and got second money by 2½ lengths over William Haggin Perry's Lamb Chop. Nalee took fourth place by a neck over Speedwell in the field of 14.

The time on a fast track for the mile and one-eighth was 1 minute, 50 2-5 seconds.

Spicy Living won the $50,000 Acorn here May 18 and will attempt to complete the triple in the $100,000 Coaching Club American Oaks at Aqueduct, June 22. This was her fourth victory in six starts this year.

Vacations go smoother in a Chevrolet Corvair

Bring on those mountains! They're not so high and mighty when you've got Corvair's gutty six and rear-engine traction working on them.

You scurry right up the meanest grades. You move with sure-footed agility on wet pavement, muddy lanes, loose gravel and other would-be miseries.

And with most of Corvair's weight on the rear wheels, you have easy steering, too. Fact is, the car's handling is so light and responsive we don't even offer power steering.

And there's more to feel good about. No problems with your radiator boiling over or going dry, because there's no radiator. Corvair's engine is air cooled. No concern about brake adjustments, either, because the brakes adjust themselves. Nothing much to think about at all except the good time you're having (and maybe the next mountain you're going to flatten).

Like to do that in a sporty bucket-seated Monza Club Coupe or Convertible? Like to spring into summer with a 4-speed stick shift* and Spyder package* with its 150-hp Turbocharged engine, special instrumentation and insignia? Your dealer's got just the Corvair and the Trade 'N' Travel deal on it to put you in a holiday mood. *Optional at extra cost

Red China on Way Up Shown To a British Travel Group

EDITOR'S NOTE: Richard P. Lister, British author and former industrial metallurgist, has just come out of Red China after a three-week British travel agency tour. In this special article he offers a rare look at people and life inside Red China today.

By RICHARD P. LISTER

PEKING (AP) — Red China, which had no place else to go, is going upward.

The Red revolution is 14 years old and looks it—gangly here, scruffy there, disciplined in one spot, and untidy in another.

But after three weeks with a group of tourists from London, the conclusion has to be that the Red Chinese are going forward in their own way. If it's not the "Great Leap" yet, it's at least a purposeful stride.

Not everyone in China goes along with the order of things, so refugees still stream by the thousands into Hong Kong. Starving, hopeless, they abandoned their homeland because it holds no future for them. What about the half billion or more left behind?

We tourists addressed ourselves to finding out about them.

We traveled 3,000 miles from Peking to Wuhan, Canton, Shanhai, Nanking. Everywhere the people were calm, purposeful, hard-working; the children plump, brisk, and cheerful.

China is vast, and we saw only a fraction of it. All the same you cannot spend half a day in Naples without knowing the deep poverty, or a morning in Stockholm without seeing that the Swedes are thriving. In the China we saw there were no signs of despair. There were poverty and hard living, but the people seemed to have enough to eat and enough to wear. Above all they had hope. Things were getting better, and they could see that happening.

Floods, harvest failures, international complications all appear to be things to be overcome rather than moaned about. Do they worry about overpopulation? Indeed not. For the moment it's perhaps a blessing.

The Red Chinese need manpower, in the absence of mechanical aids. Where you would see one bulldozer in the West you see a hundred men or women in China, carrying earth on their backs.

Output of food is increasing.

The cities are exploding: Peking's population shot from 1½ million to 7 million since 1949. But birth control is not even thought of.

Everywhere we went Albanian delegations were greeted with enthusiastic handclapping and welcoming smiles. Portraits and plaster busts of Castro abound. He takes his place alongside Mao Tze-tung, Marx, Engels, Lenin, and Stalin. No doubt this is less a tribute to his political reliability than to his appeal as one who set up an outpost of communism in the heart of the Western world.

The Chinese are not afraid of the Soviet Union. As they see it, the Russians may have drifted away from the true Communist faith, but they are not going to attack China, provided the Chinese are strong enough.

They have no doubt where the true enemy, if one exists, resides —not in the United States as a whole, but in the White House. Chinese told us "we know the American people areour friends; it is only the government that is our enemy."

In a children's playground in Shanghai we saw boys and girls of 11 or 12 lining up to throw cotton balls at a barely recognizable image of President Kennedy. It was a childish diversion in more senses than one.

Their picture of America is based firmly on doctrine, distorted almost beyond recognition. I talked with one of our guides at Nanking about America. The ordinary people of America, I told him, are rich compared with even those of Britain and unbelievably rich compared with the Chinese. He did not trouble to consider this. Instead he told me flatly that the vast majority of Americans are desperately poor and this is why they are always having strikes. It was no use arguing with him.

Dirksen's Dramatic Overtures

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I wish my great fellow protagonist well," the senator sadly intones, tossing his mane of gray hair and waving his arms grandiosely.

"I shall pray for him, knowing that like the martyrs in the Coliseum, he will be able to say:

"'Murituri, murituros salutant!'" (We who are about to die saulte you.)

Latin scholars may find fault with the grammar, but are charmed by its enunciator—Everett M. Dirksen, Republican senator from Illinois, and minority leader of the Senate.

Once a would-be actor and author, Dirksen is probably the only man in Washington who could unself-consciously wear a toga while debating the issue of the atomic age.

"What dramates does is to develop a sense of complete poise," says Dirksen, who in his youth gloried in amateur theatricals and writing novels that never got published.

Dubbed "Prince" of a city pageant in his home town of Pekin 38 years ago, (thus the label, "Prince of Pekin") the 67-year-old senator recognizes the value of a dramatic performance.

He sounds a little like Hamlet as he describes his role as minority leader in a Democratic-controlled Senate:

"How to make this show operate—that is the problem."

Nor is he unmindful of the dramatic effect of the nimbus of gray hair that sprouts from his head in undisciplined tufts—looking some say, as if it were combed with an eggbeater.

"If you have some kind of trademark like unruly hair, people get to recognize you," he says.

But Dirksen is not merely being dramatic in his flights of Senate oratory.

He occupies one of the chief seats of power in the Republican party, a station one reaches after demonstrating undeniable political talent.

The serious Dirksen works with the theatrical and frequently humorous Dirksen to keep him in the political limelight and presumably insure continued life to a 30-year congressional career.

While he is whimsical at times, indulging in sonorous oratory seemingly for no purpose except to amuse his colleagues and himself, he gets right to the point in deadly serious matters.

The night of July 9, 1952, at the Republican national convention in Chicago, is one that many remember vividly.

He wanted Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio to win the presidential nomination.

Pleading for the seating of a Georgia delegation favorable to Taft, Dirksen departed abruptly from the accepted pattern of convention speakers and bitterly attacked Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, who had been the party nominee in 1944 and 1948. Dewey was backing Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Dirksen shook a threatening finger at him and shouted:

"We followed you before, and you took us down the road to defeat."

Boos mixed with cheers and gasps at this personal attack. Eisenhower, watching the convention of television, was reported to have shaken his fist at the screen. Dewey ultimately delivered the big New York bloc to Eisenhower.

Dirksen and Eisenhower later worked comfortably together in Washington.

In the Senate these days, Dirksen gets second billing behind Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, but he frequently steals the show.

ANOTHER SEDALIA landmark came down this week, the large brick house on Kentucky between Third and Second on the west side of the street that set back from the street. This home was built somewhere around the time of the Civil War by Major William Beck. Major Beck, born in 1827 in Hamburg, Germany and came to this country in 1856 engaging in the lumber business, and settled in Priceville. In 1860 he was married to Miss Rebecca Bohon, and at the breaking of war in 1861, joined the Union forces. The home was a spacious place, well built and with a beautiful winding stairway. It was on the lot that he owned that went from Kentucky to Moniteau and from Third to the alley between Second and Third. The Becks had three children, Ella Beck Phipps, Cora Beck Highleyman and Lewis Beck. When Ella married, he built her a cottage on Third and Moniteau. When Lewis married he built him a home, on the corner, and when Cora married he built her a cottage facing Moniteau. He later sold the property to Third after the alley was cut through. Granddaughters of Major and Mrs. William Beck who live in Sedalia are Mrs. William Hurley, Mrs. Arline Hicks, Mrs. James Collins and Miss Marian Phipps. (Democrat-Capital photo)

River Coast Guard Keeping Water Safe for Freighters

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—Landlocked Coast Guard rivermen sweat and strain far from salt sea spray, so that tons of freight can move safely each year on the Mississippi and its tributaries in 21 states.

The freight amounts to 191 million tons annually and that's equal to about 65 per cent of the tonnage shipped from all U.S. coastal ports. The river freight moves in barges pushed by diesel and steam powered towboats on the swirling currents of mud and water that make up the Mississippi River basin.

Towboats have replaced paddle wheelers on a strin gof American rivers that reads like poetry: the Mississippi, Missouri, Allegheny, Cumberland, Green, Illinois, Kanaway, Monogahela, Ohio, St. Croix Tennessee and Minnesota.

Soon, the Arkansas River will be added to the 5,100 miles of navigable waters the U.S. Coast Guard oversees in this second district, the largest inland, from headquarters in St. Louis.

Warrant Officer Elmer Lovan, captain of the tender Foxglove an a 26-year veteran of sea and river, talked about the Coast Guard's inland mission as his boat rolled up the Mississippi River.

"Some freight might move if it weren't for our aids to navigation," he said. "But not as much and by a long shot not as often."

Army Corps of Engineers' figures for 1961 show that 190,976,806 tons of freight moved on the 12 major rivers in the Second Coast Guard District. By comparison, 294,000,138 freight tons moved from U.S. coastal ports in the same year.

Lovan, a mustached sailor who lost his index finger wrestling river buoys when he was a seaman aboard the 114-foot Foxglove, got his present job by asking for it. "This is hard work," he said, "but I like it."

He and his crew are responsible for keeping the Mississippi safe for towboats from St. Louis to Cairo, Ill. In that 174-mile stretch of twisting river are the crosses a riverman bears—six bridges with their deadly jutting piers.

"Radar will pick up the bridges," Lovan said, "but it won't pick up piers. There was one tow pushing 40 barges, and they smashed into the piers of the Greenville, Miss., bridge on a foggy night. Thirteen hands were saved, but 13 went down."

Besides servicing the bobbing red and black buoys on the river, the Foxglove crew tends 154 fixed shore lights and 67 day markers in their weeklong tour on the river.

They also use buoys to mark of rocks and wire that seek to tooth piers. The dikes are piles the ends of dikes and the dragon-keep the Mississippi in a stable channel and stop the river from carrying rich farm land to the Gulf of Mexico. The dikes haven't worked too well.

The tender, which ties up during the night, gets underway before the sun struggles out of undergrowt h on the Illinois bank.

Elizabeth's Era

Shining Monarchy Without Any Aloofness by Royalty

LONDON (AP)—Just 10 years ago a shy, blue-eyed, brown-haired young woman was crowned queen, and pundits predicted a second golden Elizabethan Age.

A decade after her magnificent coronation in fabled Westminster Abbey, what of the second Elizabeth and the state of her nation?

In this age of the common man, she has managed to maintain a shining image of monarchy, a monarchy removed from the sweaty hustle of everyday life but not aloof from it or the people.

With energetic and often offbeat assistance from her handsome husband, Prince Philip, she has modernized the throne without cheapening it.

And at the age of 37—when morals and patterns of human behavior are hardly what they used to be—Queen Elizabeth II is a flawless example of mother and wife.

Today no breath of scandal is whispered in a court that over the ages has fairly whistled with it.

Six years ago, when Prince Philip sailed off on a world cruise in the royal yacht Britannia, he left faint rumors in his wake of a rift in the royal romance. The rumors never had the slighest substantiation.

Close friends know the royal couple as two happily married people.

They are deeply devoted to one another, to their exacting and often tiring jobs, and to their three children, Prince Charles, 14; Princess Anne, 12; and Prince Andrew, 3. Intimates say the queen wants another.

On the 10th anniversary of her coronation, the queen's hair is still brown but has a few telltale strands of silver.

She is still slim and elegant, but there's a slight suggestion of a double chin. Tiny lines are forming at the corners of her cornflower blue eyes.

She has gained a lot of poise, but she hasn't conquered shyness. Often in public — especially at royal weddings — this shyness gives her a sour look.

Queen Victoria, her great-great-grandmother, had that sour look sometimes. Maybe it's in the family.

Queen Elizabeth II's detractors may criticize her, but they never condemn her.

She likes horses better than she does the ballet.

She'd rather go racing then attend the opera.

She prefers a good musical to a symphony and, it's said, a fox hunt to a visit to an art gallery.

Fresh air has swept down the dusty corridors of Buckingham Palace, blowing away such archaic institutions as the annual presentations of debutantes, usually daughters of the rich and titled.

Instead the queen gives frequent informal luncheons to which people from all walks of life are invited.

Negroes Set Targest In Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A minister active in the integrationist movement says Los Angeles will be the target of Birmingham-style efforts to force "a total community" that is nonsegregated.

The Rev. Maurice A. Dawkins, a spokesman for the Los Angeles chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, put it this way Thursday in discussing the plan with newsmen:

"Los Angeles will be the focal point for our march toward equality. We have the largest Negro population here of any city west of the Mississippi.

"We are not asking for a small specific adjustment, but a total community integration."

The Negro clergyman, who returned only recently from visits to Alabama and Washington, D.C., frequently has participated in prayers involving integration—some of them conducted on the steps of the Los Angeles City Hall.

After last Tuesday, when a general election established that Los Angeles will have three Negroes on the 15-member City Council, there were immediate predictions by the principals and others that considerable civil rights legislation would be pressed. But there was no mention by the councilmen of any organized effort along that line.

The Rev. Mr. Dawkins, however, said Negro leaders will meet next week to plan strategy and a timetable for "a general attack."

He conceded that discrimination in Los Angeles is confined largely to the "de facto" consequences of jobs and housing. In that connection, he said that labor unions would be a target of the campaign.

"We have found," he said, "that in many instances the unions are worse than management in discrimination against the Negro."

MONEY WITH A MESSAGE—One-peso banknotes being circulated in Cuba by the underground carry the following overprinting: "Valueless for food . . . Valueless for clothing . . . Because communism is hunger, misery and destruction . . . This is the work of the great traitor." Possession of the notes poses a problem: If they're taken to a bank, bearer may be accused of collaboration with the resistance. If attempt is made to spend the money bearer is, in effect, collaborating. If money is destroyed, bearer takes the loss. Bill is shown as it appeared in Free Cuba News.

Hong Kong's People Are Low on Water

HONG KONG (AP)—This modern Oriental city of skyscrapers and squatter shacks is facing a major crisis for lack of water.

The worst drought in Hong Kong's history has raised the threat of violence, disease and economic dislocation.

Hong Kong's 3.5 million people have been searching the brilliant blue skies for weeks for the first sign of monsoon rains that normally drench this part of the world at this time of year.

The Royal Observatory has recorded three inches of rain the last six months, little more than an inch the last four months—the dryest stretch since the observatory was founded in 1884.

The city's reservoirs, Hong Kong's main source of water, have only 30 days of water left.

Water runs to homes only four hours every other day. Thousands of people without indoor plumbing stand for hours every other day in lines that stretch for blocks, waiting for precious water from sidewalk hydrants.

The government has warned that rations may have to be cut to four hours every three days or cut off entirely.

This would force hundreds of thousands of people — including residents of plush homes and apartment buildings—to line up for water at the public sidealk hydrants.

Sidewalk tempers have been frayed for weeks. Fights have broken out over buckets of precious water.

Policemen guard sidewalk hydrants and inspectors check household water meters and have fined householders found guilty of extravagance. Water blackmarketers have been jailed.

Schools have relaxed standing requirements for summer white uniforms, for lack of water to wash them.

Hardest hit are 500,000 refugees from Red China who still live in floating sampan villages or quatter shacks clinging to hillsides.

Because of congested conditions they may stand in line 10 hours or more for a bucket or two of water every other day.

Hotels, cafes and restaurants report a 20 per cent drop in business.

Rumblings Worry For Verwoerd

By ROBERT N. LINDSAY

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Could the blood bath widely predicted for this land of white supremacy become a grim reality?

The answer is no — so long as Prime Minister Hendrik Verword's all-white regime keeps its vice-like grip on the nation. But ominous rumblings have the government worried.

Last month the government rushed through its no-trial law, empowering police to arrest any white, mulatto or black suspected of having information about threats to the state's security. Suspects can be held for questioning for 90 days without charge or trial. The detention period can be renewed indefinitely.

Under earlier antisabotage and anti-Communist laws, the government can deprive any citizen of his personal liberty without bringing him to court.

Other measures used to muzzle critics or so-called subversives are house arrest, banishment and restriction to a limited area.

Justice Leslie Blackwell, a former member of Parliament, says that in 50 years of public life he had never seen so much violence and hatred. He spoke at a meeting to protest the new security law.

The government's main worry is Poqo, an underground organization using terroristic methods. Poqo is directly associated with the banned Pan-African Congress, which originally set out to undermine the white regime and get more rights for Africans by political action.

A top Poqo leader, Potlako Leballo, has vowed to touch off a bloody antiwhite uprising this year.

A few days after he made his threat, police raided Leballo's home in neighboring British-administered Basutoland and seized a list naming at least 10,000 Poqo suspects. Leballo himself got away and is believed to have fled to another part of the continent.

The large South African police force combed segregated African townships and rounded up hundreds of suspects. They now await trial on charges of membership in an illegal organization.

THE SEDALIA DEMOCRAT

Sedalia, Missouri, Sunday June 2, 1963 | In Combination With The Morning Capital | Feature Section

EXPERT TOOLING by Lon R. Slaton turned out the device he calls "the world's most useless necessity," which he is showing to his wife. The item, a conversation piece par excellence, is being sold now throughout the nation. Mr. Slaton makes these and other inventions and items for the Slaton home in the "Dog House" behind their home at 1614 South Park.

THERE! "That's where we used to live," says Shirley Marriott, of a spot on a map of Fort Riley, Kan. Sitting with her on a divan in their living room, are her parents, Erna and Melvin Marriott. Mr. Marriott may be a little young for retirement; however, it's only from the United States Army that he is retired after 20 years. He is now training for the parts business with a local automobile firm.

Retirement Hasn't Slowed Busy Lives

By MURRY ENGLE

RETIREMENT today can be a free - wheeling thing. The people interviewed for this story are far from ready to be put on the shelf. The only things on their shelves are of beauty and use in their mobile, modern way of living.

The subjects of this story are, if anything, more active than ever. In fact, you don't have to be old to retire anymore, as you will see in these photographs.

These people are using their retirement time for things they enjoy. They have planned their leisure years for fun, friends and the good things of life.

Kept Busy

"We just don't have the time to do everything we'd like," says Mrs. Lon R. Slaton of their years of retirement. The Slatons came here from Kansas City to live, "Because it's home to us."

Mr. Slaton was reared in Hughesville and spent many years primarily in the mercantile business. Mrs. Slaton taught school at Mark Twain for several years. In Kansas City, Mr. Slaton was in the auto parts business and Mrs. Slaton did payroll processing for a firm in Kansas City, Kan.

Each of the Slatons has many interests. They purchased their home at 1614 South Park and have redecorated it and added to its comforts. A small back porch has been added to the structure. There they can sit and look over a patio and walk of 625 bricks, which they laid; a deep yard carpeted with thick new grass; Mrs. Slaton's carefully landscaped borders of flowers; and birds making use of a hand-crafted bird house and splashing in a birdbath.

Own Dog House

The brick walk leads to a cement block house in the back yard which is Mr. Slaton's "Dog House." He's in there a lot, but not because he's in any trouble with Mrs. Slaton. She is quite proud of him and the work he does. A little potbellied coal stove heats the shop, where power and hand tools for an infinite variety of jobs are neatly arranged. A radio provides background music and Mrs. Slaton provides cooking and inspiration.

Mrs. Slaton, a gardener, also likes to sew. On one of the four-postered beds in the house, is a quilt-spread of camelia design. Both the Slatons like to fish and Mr. Slaton has invented a lure retriever. Another of his deceptively simple inventions is being used in scientific industries.

Considering the prolific array of projects, it is easy to see the Slatons are not going to run out of enjoyable things to do for their lifetime.

Here From Africa

Detouring through South Africa, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Vick, who are from Missouri, are now among Sedalia's best civic boosters. Mr. Vick was reared in Bunceton and Mrs. Vick's family lives in Kansas City.

Throughout the Vicks' married life, they resided in metropolitan areas. Mr. Vick was a hosiery manufacturer in New York City before his retirement.

They went to live in Durban, South Africa, for ten years for a change of scenery and to be with their daughter, Mrs. Barbara Moore, who works there. Africa is an unforgettable interlude with servants and a unique way of living. Unrest in the African political atmosphere, and a longing to return to this part of the world backed up a decision made long ago by the Vicks.

"Darn Good Town"

The two had always said when they retired they didn't want to live in the country and they had had enough of city life. "Sedalia is just the right size," says Mr. Vick, "and besides, it's a darn good town."

In Sedalia they find enough to satisfy their cosmopolitan and individual tastes. Mrs. Vick spends much time working in her garden and belongs to Garden Club 2. Mr. Vick is a member of the Kiwanis and they both are Knife and Fork enthusiasts. Their church membership is at Calvary Episcopal. They are contributing to the community and like what the community has to contribute in these pleasant years of their lives.

Retirement Age Lower

Average retirement age is getting lower all the time. In an era of industrial revolution, high ambition, and hard working people, total or partial retirement; or completion of one career and switching to another are more and more common at an early age.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Marrittt and their daughter, Shirley, have come to Sedalia to live after his retirement from the United States Army. They still have most of a lifetime before them. Marriott was an E7 (sergeant), most recently stationed at Fort Riley, Kan.

Erna comes originally from Czechoslovakia. Her family was evacuated to the East Zone of Germany at the end of World War II. She was then 14 years old.

Later, Erna's mother moved to the Black Forrest. But it was at Ashaffenburg that she met Melvin in 1953. They were later married and have spent much of the time locating wherever the Army sent them.

Native of Stover

Melvin is a native of Stover and his family is still there. He is now "taking a whack" at training for auto parts work at a local automobile firm, starting a career related to his Army supply work.

The Marriotts have been here only two months and Sedalia is still new to them. Shirley already has friends playing in her yard and the family is accustomed to making friends wherever they go.

Erna and Melvin are hoping to join a square dance club. Real retirement is something for their future, and Sedalia is their choice for this one.

Before choosing a retirement home, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Greenhaw traveled the length and breadth of the country, looking for an ideal place. They didn't like the densely populated cities or climates of other places which receive publicity about their ideal locations. Careful consideration was given many spots.

Sedalia's altitude of around 800 feet-above-sea level is just right, according to Mr. Greenhaw, who retired from mail ordering for a national firm because of health. "Even Missouri's climate is ideal," he says. Springfield was his home, but the elevation there is a shade too high.

Sedalia has everything the Greenhaws need and is centrally located to the Ozarks and other places they like to visit.

"We plan to stay here," say the adopted Sedalians. "We like the people we've met. The parks are beautiful, Sedalia has good hospitals, doctors, schools and an excellent libr... water, in particular, is good."

Mrs. Green... as fine arts chairman of Maryland's Federated Women's Clubs and finds many things of interest in this area. Both she and her husband are drawn to the study of archaeology and hope to visit the University of Missouri's "dig" at Lyman Research Center at Van Meter Park near Miami this summer. Mrs. Greenhaw does genealogical research and finds much of her material in the local library.

The Greenhaws have purchased their home. Paneling, bookcases, a fireplace and attractive decorating make it a comfortable base for active retirement.

AVID READERS, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Greenhaw, who came here from Baltimore, spend a chilly spring evening reading together in their home at 416 South Grand. Mr. Greenhaw is delving into a history of "The Renaissaance" by Will Durant, a book he borrowed from the Sedalia Public Library. History is also a favorite subject of Mrs. Greenhaw. She is ready to open a copy of the "Missouri Historical Review."

ZULU PLAQUES are shown here by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Vick. They are talking together of their ten years in South Africa, when many of their servants were Zulu natives. These are well-crafted likenesses say the couple, who are now residents of Sedalia. (Democrat-Capital photo)

Corbett New Man Is 'Route 66'

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—New man on "Route 66"—Glenn Corbett.

He is, of course, cool, clean-cut, clever and all the other adjectives that describe the hero of a television adventure series. And so he has slid smoothly into the sports car seat beside Martin Milner.

That position was once occupied by George Maharis, who cut out from the show amid some acrimony. He claimed he was sick; the producers wondered. There wasn't time to argue the point; the essence of "Route 66" is that it must keep moving. Corbett was hired.

He eschews any controversy with his predecessor.

"The company's problem with Maharis is the company's problem with Maharis," said the actor. "I've never even met him. I did get a telegram from him when I started my first filming on the show."

Threatening?

"No, no. It was very friendly, wishing me good luck and all of that."

Corbett isn't quite sure how he got the job.

"I'll have to ask Herb Leonard about that," he said, referring to the producer. "I suppose it had something to do with my being on 'It's a Man's World.'"

The latter is the NBC hour which lasted a mere 19 weeks this season despite strong support in some quarters.

Corbett is unreserved in his praise of the "Route 66" assignment. He doesn't even mind the traveling.

Mrs. Thomas DeVisser, Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, announces the engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Marion Jean, to Mr. Harry B. Young, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Young, 1000 West Fourth. Miss DeVisser is also the daughter of the late Mr. DeVisser. The wedding is planned for July 5 at the Sale Lake Temple, Salt Lake City, Utah. Mr. Young is a graduate of Cole Camp High School. He is attending BYU, majoring in accounting in the senior college of business. Mr. Young served as a missionary for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints for two years in the Northern State Mission.

Mrs. Paul E. Bahner

Miss Delores Arlene Light Weds Mr. Paul E. Bahner On May 25

At nine o'clock Saturday morning, May 25 at Sacred Heart Church, the Rev. F. C. Laudick performed the double ring ceremony, uniting in marriage Miss Delores Arlene Light, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon B. Light, 1109 West 16th, and Mr. Paul E. Bahner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Bahner, 239 South Stewart.

The altar was decorated with bouquets of white stock, chrysanthemums and sea foam statice. Standing baskets of white stock, chrysanthemums and statice were at the communion rail.

White satin bows marked the pews of relatives.

Mrs. Earl Paxton was organist. Miss Virginia Stohr, Miss Sharon Madorin, Miss Janet Edwards and Miss Marsha Brown sang "Mother At Your Feet is Kneeling," "On This Day, Oh Beautiful Mother," Saint Rita's Mass and "Ave Maria."

Escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a bell silhouette gown of veiled silk organza and hand-clipped Chantilly lace. The long sleeved lace basque bodice was designed with a Sabrina neckline etched with pearls, and imported sequins. An edging of lace, curving from a back peplum, formed an apron effect on the silk skirt. Pearl trimmed lace appliques highlighted the skirt front and the great fullness of the back flowed to a chapel train.

A cornet headdress of crystal and pearls held her bouffant veil of silk illusion, She carried a cascade bouquet of white glamellias with violet tinted stephanotis and glacier ivy.

Bridal attendants were Mrs. Ted Meyer, Blue Springs, who served as matron of honor, Miss Karen Woods, Kansas City, bridesmaid; and Miss Connie Light, sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. They wore identically styled dresses of violet silk organza over taffeta. The basque fitted bodices had scalloped necklines and sleeves. The skirts were double pleated to great fullness. Their veiled ring hats were of matching fabric and embroidered with pearls. Bridal attendants carried Colonial bouquets of deep purple asters and sea foam statice.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Lee Redmond, Columbia, as best man and Mr. Marvin Mettler, Maryville, was groomsman. Ushers were Mr. Mark Mettler, Kansas City, and Mr. Ted Meyer, Blue Springs.

The bride's mother wore a rose colored sheath dress of embroidered linen and matching accessories. The bridegroom's mother chose a navy blue silk crepe dress, blue hat and black patent accessories. Both mothers had corsages of white carnations and stephanotis.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Old Missouri Homestead. The bride's table was covered with a floor-length white lace tablecloth over violet. Large purple bows were at the corners of the table and it was decorated with smilax and violet colored asters and centered with a three tiered wedding cake decorated with wedding bells and doves. At either end of the table were silver candelabra, holding lighted tapers.

A second table, decorated like the bridal table, held two crystal punch bowls.

The cake was served by Miss Carol Hyatt, Raytown, cousin of the bride. Miss April Burton, Kansas City, and Mrs. Robert Stansbury, Sedalia, were at the punch bowls.

Mrs. Marvin Lee, Streator, Ill., sister of the bridegroom, was in charge of the guest book.

Following the reception, the couple left for a wedding trip to Colorado. For traveling, the bride chose a powder blue shantung sheath dress with matching accessories. She had a corsage of blue tinted glamellias.

The bride was graduated from Smith-Cotton High School in 1958 and attended Central Missouri State College for three years and is now employed at Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

The bridegroom was graduated from Sacred Heart High School in 1957 and spent three years in the United States Navy. He is now a senior at Central Missouri State.

After June 4, the couple will be at home in the Harrison Apartments, Sedalia.

Friday night, May 24, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Light entertained at a rehearsal dinner for the wedding party and members of the immediate families at Flat Creek Inn.

The First Methodist Church was the scene of the marriage of Miss Connie Rank, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Rank, 1314 East 13th, to Mr. Jewel Leon Blansett, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Blansett, Cardwell, at half past seven o'clock the evening of May 29. The Rev. Roy Stribling read the double ring ceremony.

Two seven-branch brass candelabra with white cathedral tapers were entwined with emerald foliage and tied with white satin bows. Altar vases and baskets of white stock and pink Majestic daisies, with large green woodwardia fern, enhanced the altar.

Miss Lillian Fox was organist and accompanied Mr. Joe Allen, Sedalia, who sang.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a chalk white gown of silk organza and imported French lace. The slender lace bodice was designed with long tapered sleeves and a Sabrina neckline, highlighted with sequins and pearls. The voluminous silk skirt was bordered with scalloped lace and featured a pick up front marked with fabric bows. At the back, three great silk tiers edged with lace flared to a wide chapel train. Her short triple pouf veil of silk illusion was held by a coronet of orange blossoms and her flowers were cascaded white roses, Stephanotis and glacier ivy tied with lace edged bridal satin ribbon.

Miss Joyce Blaylock, Columbia, formerly of Sedalia, was maid of honor. Bridesmaid was Miss Kathy Oehrke, Columbia, formerly of Sedalia. They wore matching costumes of silk organza over taffeta in petal pink. The slim bodices were styled with scoop necks and summer short sleeves. Satin cummerbunds circled the waists, accentuating the fullness of the short gathered skirts.

Their headdresses were cabbage roses of pink satin with matching circle veils and they carried Colonial arrangements of white carnations and pink sweetheart roses with pink satin streamers.

Mr. Ernest DeKamp, Sedalia, was best man. Mr. Don Stean was groomsman. Ushers were Mr. C. E. Case and Mr. Larry Dirk.

Miss Gayle Vancel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Vancel, was flower girl. She wore a white princess dress and carried a basket of pink rose petals. Her coronet was of white pompon chrysanthemums.

Master Jeff Wilson, son of Mr. Lowell Wilson, carried the rings to the altar on a heart shaped satin pillow.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents following the ceremony. The bridal table was covered with white lace over pink. The three tiered wedding cake was decorated with pink roses, a miniature bride and bridegroom and encircled with smilax and pink daisies. Two branch candelabra holding white tapers were at either side of the cake.

The mother of the bride wore a corsage of pink sensation roses with her costume. The bridegroom's mother wore a blue lace dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

For traveling, the bride wore a white dress with accessories to match and a corsage of pink roses.

A Quiz On American Flag Would Stump Many Citizens

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the most recognizable and least known things in our life today is the American flag.

We get an automatic lift of heart whenever we see that banner in the sky take each passing breeze in grandeur. Our inborn patriotism seizes us by the throat, particularly if a band is passing by with drums beating and bugles blowing.

But who can sit down and describe it?

Very few of us.

Let us consider a few questions about it.

If you ask the average American what are the colors in his flag, he will immediately reply, "red, white and blue"—and look at you as if you were impertinent.

If you ask him what are the colors of the stripes, he will reply "red and white."

If you ask him how many stripes there are, after a dutiful search of his grammar school history memories, he'll reply, "thirteen—one for each of the original colonies."

So far, so good. Now ask him, "how many red stripes are there, and how many white stripes?

After a long and doubtful mental consultation with himself, he may—eight out of ten—come up with the correct answer—seven red stripes, six white stripes.

Well, you say, if the stripes are red and white, what color are the stars? The chances are that he will answer, without thinking, that the stars are blue.

If you point out that the stars are actually white against a blue background, he will begin to get mad.

Then, if you inquire how many stars there are in the flag, he'll begin to think you are making a fool of him. But his answer may be 48, 49 or 50.

If he happens to give the correct answer, which at the moment happens to be 50, you will hardly fluster him by asking him if he can draw the proper positions of the stars in the flag.

"Why, that's simple," he'll say.

If you tell him he's wrong and that there are nine rows of stars in his flag, he'll regard you as a liar and after struggling with pencil against paper tell you it's mathematically impossible.

Then you show him that it isn't. The current American flag does rows have six stars. That makes 30. Between them alternately are four rows of five stars. That makes 20. Add 30 and 20 and you have our 50 states.

Well, in this world I guess we take many familiar things for granted. And I suppose it isn't as important to be able to draw the American flag as it is to feel its starry fingers wave in certainty above us all.

The PROOF of the PUDDING as well as the PAINT

Four years ago, in June of 1959, Mr. and Mrs. John Killion, who live very close to the city limits on the Abell Road, were putting the finishing touches to their newly built home. They had used only quality building materials, purchased from Johns Lumber Company, throughout its construction and, naturally, wanted a superior paint to protect their investment.

In that same year of 1959 Du Pont, after years of research and field testing, had introduced a new miracle house paint called LUCITE. For many years LUCITE, a plastic, has been a registered trade mark of Du Pont. Nearly forty years ago the young men of my day were giving their best girls LUCITE dresser sets as gifts. Later LUCITE was used in the nose cones and bomb bays of the planes that brought us victory in World War II. Knowing its quality of durability, Du Pont chemists worked month after month, year after year, trying to work out a way where LUCITE could become a basic unit of a superior, longer lasting paint. The fact that they succeeded so well is the prime reason for this advertisement. We prevailed upon our good customers, the John Killions, to give LUCITE a try. They selected a beautiful color called "Raffia." They agreed to follow the Du Pont recommendations for its use. They gave their factory primed cedar shake siding another prime coat of Du Pont Blister Resistant Primer and followed this with a topcoat of LUCITE Raffia House Paint. They used in all six gallons of primer and four gallons of paint, at a cost less than seventy-five dollars.

Mr. and Mrs. John Killion were the very first users of Du Pont LUCITE House Paint in all of Central Missouri. As such, they are truly paint pioneers. The protective shield of LUCITE on their home has withstood the onslaughts of time and the ravishments of weather. Four years have passed and their home still has the appearance of being newly painted. The splendid condition of the paint on their home is a living memorial to the wisdom of their selection.

Remember that any newly painted house looks good at first. Even a white wash job stands out till the first rain. And even $3.98 and $4.98 bargain bonanza paints spruce a home up until they have been through a Missouri winter. If you have painted recently, drive by the Killion home and ask yourself honestly if your home will look as good four years from now. And if you are thinking of painting this year, ask yourself with equal candor if you can afford a lesser paint. Only the rich can afford cheap paint!

Gentle Bossy Started It

If you haven't heard about it yet, you will. This is June Dairy Month.

Observance of the event will receive ample promotion. Sedalians should give it cordial receptiveness. In milk production and the sale of dairy products, Sedalia and Central Missouri have close economic ties. When city people and farmers exchange farm products for money the business climate pulsates.

Dairying in these parts may not be the big business it is in some areas of our country but every state is a milk producer which overall accounts for about 14 per cent of total farm income.

Just how significant this is may be realized by the fact that in 1963 milk production will approximate 126 billion pounds. That's enough to supply every man, woman and child in the United States with about a quart of milk a day.

Someone asks, how do you celebrate dairy month? Go milk a cow? Certainly not, but you can include in your grocery list dairy-originated food delights you seldom try —and there are many of them.

You can really get enthusiastic about June Dairy Month. An example is the girl at a local fountain who waited on a customer bewildered about what confection to purchase. He decided on a chocolate sundae. "We've got some luscious strawberries. Why not a strawberry sundae? This is June Dairy Month, you know," the girl suggested.

What relation strawberries have to milk products is uncertain except that it's mighty fine topping for ice cream; so another dish of the latter was consumed in celebration of the June event.

But you don't have to buy food products to join in observing Dairy month. For one thing you can buy a bottle of caesin glue to make home repairs. Caesin is a milk by-product and sticks like the dickens.

Mostly, though, food stores supply the big assortment of milk products. Let's buy them in June and pamper our appetites.

By this action we will also stimulate the prosperity of milk producers, manufacturers of by - products, distributors and retailers.

We are bound to receive some benefits in return from the chain reaction from our purchases of Bossy's prime contribution to the health of mankind.

CATO (N.Y.) CITIZEN: What Is a Farmer? —A farmer is a paradox—he is an overall executive with his home; his office; a scientist using fertilizer attachments; a purchasing agent in an old hat; a personnel director with grease under his fingernails; . . . a production expert with a surplus; and a manager battling a price-cost squeeze.

He manages more capital than most of the businessmen in town. He likes sunshine, good foods. He is not much for droughts, ditches, throughways, experts, weeds, the 8-hour day, or helping with housework. . . .

A farmer must have faith to continually meet the challenges of his capacities amid the possibility that a late spring can bring his business to a standstill You can reduce his acreage but (not) his ambition. . . .

Might as well put up with him. He is your countryman — a denim-dressed, businesswise, fast-growing statesman of stature. And when he comes in at noon, having spent the energy of his hopes, he can be recharged anew with the magic words: "The market's up."

Sea: Man's Nemesis

The loss of the Thresher puts into highlight just how slight is mankind's hold on the waters of the earth.

Most submarines are limited to maneuvering above a 400-foot depth. The Thresher could go deeper, perhaps to 1,000 feet, though its capability was a secret. Even so, submarines with their limited depth can make use of only about 2 per cent of the water in the oceans. And water covers 71 per cent of the earth.

Great dreams exist of designing a craft which could dive to 20,000 feet. Man then could travel through 98 per cent of all the water on the earth.

The nation which can build such a ship, he says, "must be regarded with at least the respect accorded the nation which can land a man on the moon or can devastate an entire city with a single bomb, or that bears title of mistress of the seas."

Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

La Vonne Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Wright, 1500 West Broadway, was chosen Queen for the Girl Scout May Day festivities at Liberty Park. A disinterested committee of women made the selection from among nominees submitted by each Scout troop. Ladies in waiting to the queen are: Mary Jean Smith, Gloria Jean Reid, Helen Cooney, Elleta Wheeler, Opal Wolfe, Betty Jane Oaks, Betty Anton, Eleanor Leiter, Marie Trent, Frances Burness, Dorothy Knerl and Lone Scout Anna Jane Weinbrenner of Clarksburg.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Having completed nearly ten months of continuous service with the American Relief Administration, Raymond P. Brandt, of Sedalia, has left Russia. Brandt, who was formerly on the staff of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, will go directly to Oxford, England to complete his term as a Rhodes scholar at the University there before returning to the United States.

Phillip McLaughlin, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McLaughlin, a student at Kemper Military Academy, Boonville, won honors for his company in a competitive drill on the Kemper campus. Captain McLaughlin's company won over others by 22 points.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

FDR's Former Son-in-Law Testifies

(Editor's Note: The Washington Merry Go-Round today is written by Drew Pearson's associate, Jack Anderson.)

JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Senators have been taking a sharper look at the spokesman who testify on Capitol Hill for special interests — including the former son-in-law of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

It's been a long time since Curtis Dall was in Washington as the tall, handsome husband of Anna Roosevelt, and father of "Sistie and Buzzie," the first Roosevelt grandchildren. But he turned up the other day to testify before the Senate Finance Committee against President Kennedy's trade policies.

Dall claimed to represent the Right-Wing Liberty Lobby, then added modestly:

"Today we are also privileged to represent at this hearing by special authorization 263 groups and civic organizations located throughout the United States, having a combined membership of approximately 1,500,000."

He submitted a list of his alleged sponsors, which included such curious groups as the Pro-Blue Bookshop of Torrance, Calif., (25 members); Cardinal Mindszenty study group of East Alton, Ill., (6 members); Lamp Lighters of St. Paul, Minn., (15 members).

But he also claimed to represent several large political civic, and women's organizations.

With this formidable backing, Dall proceeded to launch into a diatribe, charging that Kennedy's Trade Policies were dreamed up by his "Political Bosses and Mentors," whom he identified ominously as "The Political Zionist Planners for Absolute Rule, via One World Government."

"This is the basic group," he said, "that created and financed what is called Communism, which bores upward on organized Christian Society from the bottom."

As he continued his tortured testimony, Dall kept reminding the committee that he spoke for "263 Groups of Loyal Americans."

"The Political Zionist Planners for Absolute Rule via One World Government," he cried, "have gained the power to influence, while remaining themselves in the shade, and thanks to the Press, they have got the gold in their hands — norwithstanding that they have had to gather it out of oceans of blood and tears."

Sen. Carl Curtis (R-Neb.), who presided over the hearing, listened without comment to the weird testimony. After Dall finally ran out of oratorical gas. Curtis courteously dismissed him.

"We thank you," he said, "for your appearance here."

Senators have now learned that Dall solicited the 263 organizations with a kind of blank check, asking them to authorize the liberty lobby "to present testimony in opposition to the Trade Expansion Plans of the President." The organizations signing up had no idea that Dall would use their names the way he did.

Boss Of The Navy

In the privacy of his quarters, Admiral George Anderson traces his troubles with Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara back to the Cuban crisis.

The deposed Navy Chief has recalled for Pentagon mates an incident in the map room during the crisis. McNamara dropped by to study the deployment of ships.

Noticing one ship standing off by itself, he asked Anderson for an explanation.

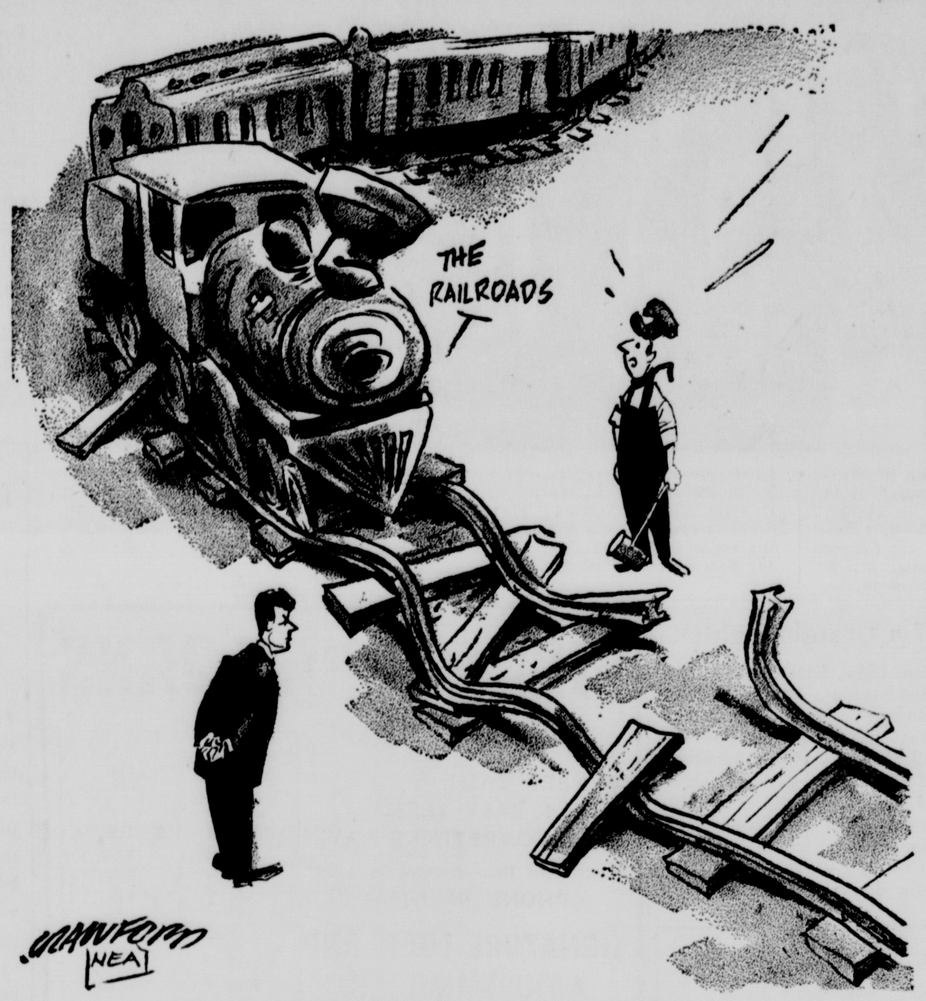

"I don't know, Mr. Secretary," confessed Anderson. "But I am sure there is a good and sufficient reason why one of my commanders would place a ship in such a position as this."

"I want that ship moved back with the others," snapped McNamara.

"Mr. Secretary," the Navy Chief replied quitely, "I have full faith in my commanders, and I won't move that ship."

Note — It turned fout that the loner was a picket ship deliberately located at a distance from the rest of the fleet.

Farm and Labor Surpluses Keep Capitol Hill Agog

By PETER EDSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The conflict between city and country is responsible for much of the controversy over some of the more important legislative proposals before Congress this year.

A dozen of the largest metropolitan areas, bogged down by their own phenomenal growth like dinosaurs in quicksand, are clamoring for help from the federal government to solve their mass transportation problems. Rural area congressmen couldn't care less.

Conversely, American farmers who have just rejected strict government controls over wheat production now look to Congress to save them from greatly reduced prices next year and bail them out with a new subsidy. City congressmen, tired of appropriating millions to support prices on unneeded farm production, would just as soon let farmers stew in their own sweat.

There is a possibility here that the two sides might get together in a mutual back-scratching hug that would give both what they want at the expense of the U. S. Treasury. That has been done before. But it is admittedly no way to solve problems.

The great shift of U. S. population from country to city that is responsible for this conflict has been going on for more than a century.

In 1860 the United States was 20 per cent urban, 80 per cent rural. In 1960 it was 30 per cent rural, 70 per cent urban, almost a complete reversal. This trend continues.

A forthcoming Twentieth Century Fund study, "Farms and Farmers in an Urban Age," goes into this problem in depth. The author is Edward Higbee, former Department of Agriculture conservationist, now professor of land utilization, University of Rhode Island. He points out that the number of American farms has dropped from 6.8 million in 1935 to fewer than 3.7 million now and is probably headed for under a million by 1980.

"Since agriculture has developed a highly effective production machine and its unneeded human resources have been shifted to the city," Higbee writes that, "America has been confronted by two kinds of surpluses. In the country is a surplus of food. In the city is a surplus of labor. . .

"Thus far the federal budget to relieve the problem of farm surpluses has been more generous than the federal budget to relieve the urban problems of surplus people."

This development has been responsible for a political realignment in America. Prosperous farmers have been traditionally businessmen and Republican. But their numbers are decreasing. In contrast, the city dweller has since the great depression shifted more and more to the Democratic side, particularly in the lower income brackets. Their number is increasing.

One of the major problems of the Republican Party today is how to capture a larger share of the urban vote, as distinguished from the higher income suburban vote which is largely GOP.

This brings up still another problem — reapportionment.

Making a first public report on research done by Nan Markel of University of Chicago, Dr. Philip M. Hauser, former assistant director of the Census Bureau, has found that the population density of a congressional district influences the congressman's voting record.

On 12 key issues before the last Congress, three - fourths of over 100 congressmen from districts with a population density of 1,000 to 50,000 to the square mile voted "liberal" consistently. The remainder, who represented the more prosperous districts, voted conservative more than half the time. But the denser the population, the more liberal the voting record.

In contrast, among 200 congressmen from districts with fewer than 100 persons to the square mile, conservative votes outnumbered liberal votes 3 - to - 2. And nearly half of the conservatives voted that way all the time.

Carrying this study into the state government field, Dr. Hauser declared in a Stanford University lecture that under-representation of urban areas had undoubtedly kept the governments of each of the 50 states as well as that of the nation more conservative than the people. And he predicted that the Supreme Court's decision on state reapportionment cases "may produce a most dramatic economic and social change" in the United States.

BERRY'S WORLD

"For our next selection, we'd like to play a tune."

Life at Shaw AFB

By CYRENE DEAR

SHAW, AFB, South Carolina—The President does not need to worry about what the men and women in the Armed Forces can do for their country—they are doing it.

Shaw Air Force Base near Sumter, South Carolina, is the home of the 837th Air Division and headquarters of Tactical Air Command's Ninth Air Force. The primary mission of this division is tactical reconnaissance and the training of replacement crews and support personnel. Commonly referred to as "The Eyes of the Tactical Air Command" the Division is composed of the 363rd Tactical Reconnaissance Wing, the 4411th Combat Crew Training Group, the 837th Tactical Hospital and the 837th Air Base Group.

The primary planes used for the Shaw "recce" mission are the all-weather RB-60 reconnaissance bomber and the supersonic RF-101 Voodoo—a fighter type reconnaissance plane.

Shaw is the largest TAC base in the country and the only tactical reconnaissance base in the United States.

So much for the description in Air Force language, but what is it like to live at Shaw AFB or any other military base for that matter? Most of the airmen are young, in their twenties or early thirties. Many service families live off base in trailers.

The dedicated service wife takes this in her stride. One instance, when her Captain husband was sent to Shaw for reconnaissance training before being sent overseas, she accepted trailer living as her vacation. Their own furniture was shipped to England so they rented a three bedroom trailer. With their three little boys they made a lark of it. It was like living on a train, except it didn't move.

It was a little hard on the Captain who was six feet three inches and weighed 210 pounds — but he was agile so he managed to move around. His petite wife, five feet three, and 100 pounds less, managed the kitchen, dining room area, where the family ate in relays and left a little space for the dog. Daddy's chair might last until they left for England and the couch springs were a little feeble, but the air conditione rworked and they could get one channel on their TV set. They had to buy a collapsible cot for Toddy, the oldest boy, because Scotty, the youngest wiggled too much to sleep with his brothers.

Military rules prevailed in the household — even Scotty had to pick up his toys, play in his bedroom when he and his brothers were not outside in the fenced in yard.

The Captain would be up in the morning flying his RB-66, a two million dollar airplane, with his navigator and gunner. Their job in wartime is to fly over enemy territory, take pictures of the target, report, and then, if lucky, fly in afterwards and take other pictures on what happened after an attack.

These men are constantly training. Many of them continue their academic studies toward their degree. Because they will retire in about eight years, with their children still young, they have to be prepared for civilian work. They are lucky if their wives are adaptable to service life. As they gather in the officer's club on Friday nights to do the twist or just sit around with a few drinks, they discuss past bases and future assignments. They have a lingo all their own. They are grateful for every mission that brings a safe return.

Shaw AFB just celebrated its Armed Forces Day where it held open house in conjunction with the municipal government of Sumter, S.C. Civilians mingled with the Air Force as they inspected the planes, equipment and utilities at the base. A helicopter staged a rescue mission and a harmless nuclear bomb was sent up in noise, flame and smoke to give the visitors an idea of what could happen in a nuclear war. A visit to any military base, but especially an Air Base, can either send shivers up and down your spine or fill you with pride and confidence for the men in our defense who fly into the bright blue yonder.

FINDING THE WAY

We Are Heard

BY RALPH W LOEW D. D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Crowds thronged a famous auditorium recently, and once more those present were aware of the importance of superb acoustics. The intricate melodies of Bach, the blending of the strings and human voice, the range of tone—all were distinctly heard. Most of us were moved by the music; all of us could appreciate the fact that sound was not only being made — it was being heard.

During the program, three young people in the last row of the balcony became restless and began to giggle and converse. What they had meant for a personal affair became heard by all.

So the acoustical principle works consistently; the lyric sound and the rude noise are heard by all.

The same thing happens in our world. We want the world to know of our virtues, and we develop the acoustics to help men overhear what we say. The same acoustics reflect our shames as well as our glories. The world knows of our failures and our difficulties, when we want them to hear our conversations concerning our educational advances, scientific explorations, humanitarian virtues and religious adventures.

We cannot hope to boast in public and sin in private.

What the young folks in the back row had to learn was that restlessness ought to be handled another way than by interrupting others. What our country still has to develop is the method of handling our tough moral problems without resorting to violence.

These are basic issues. We ought not to be shocked, then, if our shouts are heard as well as our prayers, for in this acoustically conscious age both sound and fury are broadcast.

All of us have known parents who stopped a quarrel with the injunction, "Shush, the children will hear." That's a good reason to be quiet.

For we are heard. Long before the principle of acoustics was as scientifically developed, men talked of moral acoustics. The fact of a personal God involved the conversation with God, or the knowledge of God hearing our prayers.

This brings great comfort in the time of our search for comfort. So we pray or meditate and know of the listening Father. It is as acoustically true that our raucous shouts are also heard. As Paul Tillich once insisted, "To believe in God is to have one's privacy made public." That's a shocking thing. It's a disturbing thing. It's a religious certainty. It can be morally revolutionary.

In awe of the haunting presence of God, with our privacy public, we have an acoustical dimension to our morality. "Faith comes by hearing and hearing by the word of God. . . Their sound went into all the earth and their words unto the end of the world." Whether we're up front or in the back row, we're heard. That's our comfort and our challenge.

We the Women

Rockefeller's Marriage

by Ruth Millett,
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

"If it's a solid marriage, what's wrong with it?" Fred A. Young, the Republican party chairman of New York state, asked when a reporter wanted to know if he thought remarriage would affect Gov.Nelson Rockefeller's political future.

What's wrong with the governor's remarriage from a political point of view is simply this, Mr. Young:

The women aren't going to like it — and for a very simple reason.

This remarriage follows the break-up of a marriage of 31 years. And whenever a woman hears of the break-up of a marriage that has lasted 20, 25, or 30 years she feels uneasy.

It's a chilling reminder that, though a marriage has lasted a long time and weathered many a storm, there is no assurance it will last as long as both husband and wife shall live.

Women hate to be reminded of that fact of modern marriage. And they hate to see any wife replaced by a younger woman. It makes them fell less secure.

So this remarriage of Gov. Rockefeller is bound to have an effect on his political career. Any woman looking at a picture of the governor and his new bride is bound to see in her mind's eye a picture of the wife of over 30 years, now alone.

That isn't a comforting picture to any woman. In fact, it's a downright depressing one. And it's safe to bet that an awful lot of women will carry that picture to the polls with them when they go to vote — the picture of the wife who has been left behind—along with the picture of a happy second-time bridegroom and his happy younger bride.

Token Of Life

And so, at last, God touched his twisted form,
Erased the smile that was bright and warm,
Long year of lonely vigil did he keep
Until his eyes closed in eternal sleep;
What must have been his feeling those first years,
There could not help but been some bitter tears
For he, a healthy child, could run and play
Then suddenly this all was wiped away,
It must have taken faith and lots of pluck
To pick up threads of life when illness struck,
It must have taken courage and much prayer
To reconcile his life to just a chair,
An age when energies of youth abound
To never step again upon the ground—
Just going into teens—what dreams he had—
Ambitions that are part of every lad —
The things we know that every boy must plan
That he will do when he becomes a man,
Activities in school, he had no part,
Watched other boys date girls close to his heart,
This must have been, for teens are all alike
Regardless if adversity must strike —
Worse, even, than from when life first began
These golden years between a boy and man,
So quickly in this situation thrust
It had to be an effort to adjust,
And yet he did, in life he found his place,
The years passed by and he had much to face,
Then into Buena Vista—they were kind,
Still it was a new life he had to find,
He smiled at all who entered through his door,
He read so much and knowledge did he store,
He loved to talk and many friends he made
And never did he let his interests fade,
He was the strong—though helpless in his chair,
We are the weak—though we go everywhere—
We who allow ourselves distress,
Who weep the loss of things that we possess,
We, with emotions that our lives can shatter,
Who dwell on things that really do not matter,
We who have not learned really how to live
For of our lives we do not fully give,
But he had learned to live and love and grow
When still a child some 60 years ago,
The joy of life from him seemed to reflect
Gaining him many friends and much respect —
God must have said to him, at last, "My son,
"the job I gave to you was so well done"
And from the twisted body set him free
That he might walk into eternity.

Sentimental Feelings for 'Bullet'

On The Slab, But Still In Service

There's still life left in the old "Bullet" as the Dodge fire truck was affectionally named by fire men some years ago. The service it gave the City of Sedalia for 22 years was delivering fire fighters to fires—now it is serving another purpose, service to Sedalia's children who like to play firemen. The truck retired in 1962 now has found its resting place on a concrete slab in Liberty Park and already children are climbing all over it ringing the bell.

When the old "homemade" truck was retired in March, 1962, Fire Chief Emmett "Potts" Vaught had a sentimental feeling about the old truck. He started a silent campaign to get it donated to the Sedalia Park Board so they could place it in Liberty Park's playground area for the kids to enjoy. Now it is proudly exhibited just west and south of the Liberty Park Railroad station, and already it probably has had more kids on and off of it since it took its place than most of the playground equipment. The bell has been heard to "tap" as late as 11:30 when a youngster would ship up to it and give the rope a jerk, then take off to the family car and be on his or her way.

The truck has a history. The truck was built from the chasis up by former Fire Chief John Lueck. Sedalia was in need of a new truck to replace an old Reo which had served its time and was ready to give up. The city wasn't in too good of a financial position to buy a new truck at that time, so Lueck volunteered, if the city would purchase a new truck chassis, to build a fire truck.

The chassis was backed in to the fire station on South Kentucky, July 5, 1940, and work began immediately. The steel metal bed, the water tank for the pumper which was taken off of the old Reo, it was a 500 gallon pump and pretty good for those days. He even built the wooden ladders which went on the new fire truck, forged and cast many of the other parts which were necessary to handle various types of the fire equipment.

Members of the department acted as helpers to Lueck and he worked away getting the truck in shape and when it was completed there was a sense of satisfaction they all had a part in getting a new truck for Sedalia. It first went into service when the State fair was on and it was stationed at the fair grounds during that week to let the whole state see what Sedalia's firemen could do.

Then Lueck obtained a 350 gallon pump and put it on the old Reo and that truck was sold to Bunceton.

This gave Lueck an idea and he built a ladder truck out of an old truck chassis and Sedalia had ladders which would reach some 30 feet in the air, all handled under manpower. Later the new Seagrave aerial truck was purchased with its hydraulic ladder lift. This is the 65 foot aerial still in service and operating out of headquarters on South Kentucky. Lueck built every ladder on this truck too. He had to cut the chassis in two and splice in some other truck frame and add to the drive shaft to make it long enough to handle the long ladders. This truck was sold to Armstrong, Mo., when the new 65-foot aerial arrived and it is understood to still be in service there.

Back to the "Bullet." The truck was stationed in the East Sedalia or No. 1 fire station and was in the "front line" service for 14 years before being replaced by a new 750 gallon Seagrave pumper. It then was moved to the west Sedalia headquarters station and put in as a "spare" truck. Incidentally, as a "spare" the old truck was used many times and did a good job until 1962 when it was retired for good for fire service.

While in front line service the truck figured in an accident at Fifth and Montgomery in which several firemen were injured. It was repaired and put back to work within a few days.

A funny thing about the "Bullet" was the fact that it didn't fail to make a run when called upon. One time in particular there was a fire on West Broadway, about the 1600 block. Down Broadway from the east came "The Bullet" and near Park Avenue the driveshaft gave way. Did the truck stop? No sir, it "coasted" to the fire where it finally was stopped—but the truck had to be towed back to the station. The matter of getting a new shaft was soon accomplished and back in the front line it went.

It will be recalled while on standby service, Sedalia annexed additional area. This area had no fire hydrants to get water to fight fires. Chief Lueck solved a temporary problem. He built a large tank carrying more than 500 gallons of water and arranged to have 1½ inch fire hose lines attached to it. This truck would make the runs to the outlying areas and came in handy numerous times. As new fire hydrants were located in the new annexed additions the tank was removed and the "Bullet" went back to a regular standby truck.

Chief Lueck who had 38 years service with the fire department, the last 22 as fire chief, retired from the department in May, 1958, and since that time has been living at his home on Lake of the Ozarks.

The fire department now has two of the latest 750-gallon pumpers made by the Mack Corporation, the old Seagrave which relieved the "Bullet" as the standby truck in excellent condition and the 65-foot aerial Seagrave truck.

"We are proud of our fire department," Chief Vaught said, "and we here on the department are all happy that the Dodge could be placed in the park for further use — enjoyment for the children."

The Master weaves his spell on birds. Alfred Hitchcock utilizes the rare talents of some amazingly trained birds who don't like People. The picture is an adaptation of Daphne du Maurier's classic thriller, "The Birds." Besides frightened people, there are thousands in the cast . . . all birds! Now showing at the Fox Theatre.

Say Budget Cut Is Reasonable And Practical

WASHINGTON (AP) — A businessmen's committee organized last month to rally support for President Kennedy's tax cutting plans has declared a reduction in his 1964 budget is "reasonable and practicable."

"We have had large, progressive increases in recent years and there is no justification for a continuation of the upward trend," the committee of industrialists and financiers headed by Henry Ford II said Thursday.

The businessmen did not say how much they thought the $98.8-billion budget for 1964, the largest in history, should be cut. However, they said they do not favor a reduction as great as the $10-billion tax cut they have recommended.

Have a Laugh: Kids Write Their Congressmen

How to Become a Millionaire

Many of America's richest men weren't born to wealth—as winners of the Horatio Alger Awards prove—but they do have certain traits in common

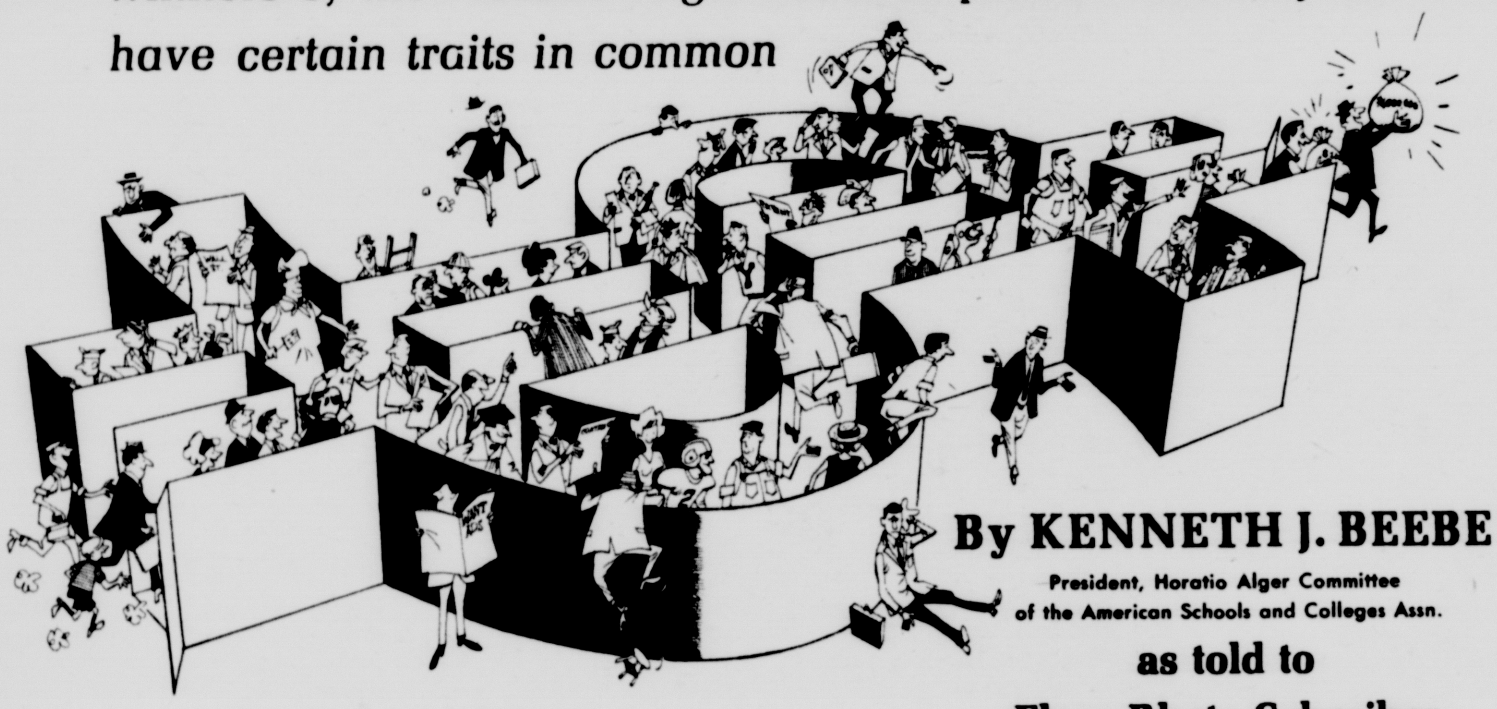

ILLUSTRATION BY BOB BUGG

By KENNETH J. BEEBE

President, Horatio Alger Committee of the American Schools and Colleges Assn.

as told to

Flora Rheta Schreiber

HORATIO ALGER was a drab, unhappy man. A poor boy, he failed in the ministry and then devoted his life to writing books that would show other boys how to succeed.

These books—Strive and Succeed, Try and Trust, Sink or Swim—inspired your fathers and grandfathers to achievement. Today Horatio Alger stands as a symbol of the American rags-to-riches dream—an old dream but still valid.

Each year I have had the great pleasure of handing out Horatio Alger awards to men who, as the embodiment of this American dream, have lived lives as if inspired by those old novels. They are selected by the Horatio Alger Awards Committee, supplemented by the votes of campus leaders at 500 colleges.

These award winners made fortunes because they possess the obvious virtues for success—a dynamic, outgoing personality, belief in people, a capacity for hard work, and a flair for salesmanship. In addition, they have four special traits that set them apart from more average men—traits which can help you develop a more successful life:

Self-Reliance—Movers and makers, the men whose lives personify the great American success story have pushed their companies into new methods and enterprises, always seeking better ways to serve people's needs. For instance, somebody once said of super-self-reliant Murray D. Lincoln, insurance-company executive and chairman of the board of CARE: "When he goes to Heaven, he'll take one look around, decide the place could stand some straightening out, and ask St. Peter for a broom."

Most people think family connections are indispensable to success, yet many of our winners were forced into self-reliance early in life. Some became the "man" of the family even before they were in their teens. But spurred by having to support their families (typically a widowed mother and a large brood of younger brothers and sisters), they achieved success earlier and more impressively than persons who are less urgently driven.

Take, for example, Albert Dorne, renowned advertising artist, illustrator, and educator who was born in the slums of New York's East Side.

After finishing seventh grade, he had to leave school to support his mother, two sisters, and a younger brother. At five, he had resolved to become a great artist, but family circumstances made him take a detour—newspaperboy, office boy, salesman. By the time he was 21, however, he had caught up with his original ambition and was already earning $20,000 a year in his chosen field. Today he is the most successful of all commercial artists and is reputed to have earned more money than anyone else in his field.

Moreover, altruism accompanied personal success. Spurred by the thought, "I studied art at home—so can you," he founded the Famous Artists' School and the Famous Writers' School in Westport, Conn. The schools have taught 54,000 students in 54 countries by correspondence.

Don't Make Money Your Only Motivation—None of our men wasted energy dreaming about gold for its own sake. As Joseph Sunnen, a multimillionaire St. Louis industrialist and one of our winners, puts it: "I just don't think anybody who wants only to make a million dollars can be happy. He has based his happiness on nothing. The only way to achieve both money and happiness is to make money a by-product of service."

Joe Sunnen has lived this philosophy to the letter. The son of a coal miner, he left school at 14 to work in a garage. His observations about faulty cars on this first job led to his later developing a valve lifter for automobiles. Today he holds patents on 50 inventions and heads his own company, Sunnen Products.

Sensing and Seizing the Opportunity—Our men didn't wait for opportunity to knock but did the knocking themselves. Take an 18-year-old farm boy, the 11th of 12 children, without a high-school education or business experience, who lost three jobs in his first two working years. Still determined, he started making brushes in the basement of his sister's home.

It was through this simple undertaking that Alfred C. Fuller became the original Fuller Brush Man, whose company today has more than 7,000 door-to-door dealers and annual sales of $100 million. He made his own opportunity in the face of total discouragement.

Learn from Your Failures—Too often, we surrender to failure and refuse to try again. Actually, failure can be a mirror which shows us how we erred, what part outside events played in it, and how we can avert future mistakes.

Taught to read and write by Annie Oakley and given his show-business ABCs by Buffalo Bill, award winner George A. Hammid, outstanding showman and authority on fairs and expositions, believes that: "Whatever success I have attained, I owe to my failures. A hungry showman learns more from one resounding failure than he does from two successes."

The experience of our Horatio Alger winners proves that in this country men without wealthy backgrounds or special privileges can succeed spectacularly. By their own efforts they pulled themselves up from obscure beginnings. They are a living testament to the fact that Americans can still transform their rags into custom-tailored suits and their pennies into dollars.

I can only tell you about them, however. If you want to join them, it's up to you.

What Now for Dr. Sam Sheppard?

This famous convict seemed likely to win parole until a beautiful blonde fell in love with him; now people again ask: is he a victim of fate or his own emotions?

By PAUL HOLMES

Author of "The Sheppard Murder Case," member of the State Bar of Wisconsin, and crime reporter who covered the Sheppard trial and subsequent developments

AS A NEWSPAPER REPORTER who covered the famous murder trial of Dr. Samuel Sheppard in 1954, I went to Columbus, Ohio, earlier this year hoping to watch proceedings which would lead to the parole of this man convicted of killing his wife.

Over the years, as a newspaperman, crime writer, and lawyer, I have studied the case thoroughly, even written a book about it. I think that Dr. Sam was innocent of the crime.

As I traveled toward Columbus, it was my feeling that Dr. Sam's evil star, after nearly nine years of ascendancy, was finally on the way down. I hadn't taken into consideration love, headlines, and a beautiful blonde who I knew had entered Dr. Sam's life. I should have.

You will recall that the Sheppard murder case began July 4, 1954, when the pregnant wife of Dr. Sam, handsome, 29-year-old member of a prominent Cleveland medical family, was bludgeoned to death in her bed. Only Sam and their sleeping son, 7, were known to have been in the house when she was killed. Sam said he was awakened by his wife's screams and twice knocked unconscious by one or two intruders when he went to her aid.

The jury which heard his story—and it took him the best part of three courtroom days to tell it—disbelieved him and convicted him of second-degree murder.

Dr. Sam began serving a life term on July 20, 1955. Ohio law requires that he serve 10 years before he can ask parole, so last January his attorneys tried another approach. They sought to make him eligible for immediate parole through a commutation of his life sentence solely on the basis of his excellent institutional record. The attorneys presented this case:

Assigned to the prison hospital, Dr. Sam had earned his keep by working as an anesthetist, technician, and male nurse. On one occasion he had saved the life of an inmate patient who had stopped breathing after surgery. He had participated in a cancer-research experiment by baring his arm to implantation of live cancer cells.

Dr. Sam had been adjudged worthy of honor status in 1960 by prison authorities and early in 1961 had been transferred from the dank, pre-Civil War prison in Columbus to a modern, medium-security institution at Marion, Ohio. Here he had set up a course in hospital and nursing techniques and as an inmate teacher had given training which enabled several convicts to get jobs upon release from prison.

The job of the parole commission, when it convened Jan. 29, was to decide whether this record entitled Sam to a recommendation for gubernatorial clemency, advancing his parole eligibility by two years. And he might have made it except that fate suddenly intervened.

Ariane Tebbenjohanns—the woman who waits.

When his attorneys arrived at the hearing, they were accompanied by a glamorous woman with platinum-blonde hair and features of classic Nordic beauty. She was swathed in furs, bedecked liberally with jewels, and surrounded by an aura of Continental sophistication.

No one in the room had to ask her identity because the morning papers had been full of her sudden advent into the case. This was Ariane Tebbenjohanns of Düsseldorf, Germany, a well-to-do divorcee who had professedly fallen in love with Dr. Sam through correspondence and was in this country to fight for his liberation and marry him upon his release.

She would go to Washington, D.C., she said; she would make a personal appeal to President Kennedy and to his brother, the Attorney General; she would write articles about the case for German magazines, exposing American injustice.

Ariane Makes Matters Worse

This made exciting reading—but not for members of the parole commission, pondering their decision. They fumed with irritation; so did Ohio prison authorities. Even more exciting reading was provided later in the day by press cables from Düsseldorf with information that Ariane was indeed all she said she was—and more. She was a half-sister-in-law of the late Dr. Joseph Paul Goebbels, Hitler's propaganda minister.

This disclosure turned Ohio public opinion swiftly against Dr. Sam. As the public saw it, here was a man serving a life term for wife-murder after a trial which proved marital infidelity, if nothing else. Now he was involved with another woman. Knowledge that Ariane was a half-sister of the late Magda Goebbels clinched matters.

Retaliation against Sam was swift. On Jan. 30, the day following the commutation hearing, Ohio prison authorities revoked his privileges to receive visits and letters from the German woman. On Jan. 31, the parole commission unanimously voted to recommend that commutation be denied. The following day Gov. James A. Rhodes formally refused clemency.

But Ariane wasn't through. Stung by the ruling she could no longer write to Sam, she handed to a Columbus newspaper a love letter she had tried to send to Sam but which prison authorities had returned to her unopened. The newspaper published it on its front page.

To the prison administration, this was the last straw. On orders of Maury C. Koblentz, commissioner of corrections, Dr. Sam was awakened in the dead of night, manacled and chained, and unceremoniously hauled from Marion back to the prison at Columbus, his honor status gone.

Koblentz said the publicity was embarrassing the prison administration and that he had reason to suspect Ariane's effort to evade his edict against communication between her and the prisoner was carried out with Sam's possible connivance. Here was a plain hint that Sam's hitherto unblemished prison record might have a black mark when the parole commission was again scheduled to re-examine his case in 1965.

So Dr. Sam will remain in the Columbus prison indefinitely, Koblentz asserted, and will never, while there, be permitted to see or communicate with Ariane.

What is this woman like?

I met Ariane the night before the Columbus hearing. She convinced me that she sincerely believed herself to be in love with Sam, although simultaneously she appalled me with her plans to use the romance as a publicity vehicle for hastening his freedom. Here is the story of her romance, as she told it to me.

She began writing to Sam nearly four years ago. He was allowed to receive but not to answer her letters. Appreciative of these gay missives from Europe, Sam had asked his brother Stephen to acknowledge their receipt and to inform Ariane that he hoped she would keep writing. The correspondence thrived, with Stephen, anxious to do anything to make life more cheerful for Sam, acting as a go-between.

Late in 1962 Ariane asked prison authorities whether she would be permitted to visit Dr. Sam. The first answer she received was no. Last Jan. 8, however, Lamoyne Green, superintendent of the Marion Correctional Institution, wrote her in Düsseldorf as follows:

"Dear Madam: We have reconsidered your request to visit the above named (Sam Sheppard) and at his request have placed you on his visiting list as a friend. As of this date, we are granting you permission to visit him when you make your trip to Marion, Ohio. The visit will have to be between the hours of 8 a.m. and 3 p.m."

Sam Meets His Admirer

Ariane arrived alone at the Marion prison on Jan. 24, five days before the commutation hearing, and that day she had her first, and so far only, meeting with Sam. He was summoned from his prison tasks to a reception room where he was allowed four-and-one-half hours with his dazzlingly attractive visitor.

Small wonder that a romance nurtured for four years by mail burst into full bloom in these hours, at least on the part of Sam, who had scarcely seen a woman in nine years. Nor can it surprise anyone that Sam, at parting, threw his arms around her. Yet this fleeting embrace is on Sam's record as a breach of prison rules.

The timing of her meeting with Sam in relation to the commutation hearing makes it plain that the state of Ohio must bear some of the responsibility for what happened. The unfortunately timed betrothal could not have taken place when it did without the state's cooperation. If the state had sought to bait a trap in which Dr. Sam might imperil his chance of early freedom, it could scarcely have done a better job.

When Ariane's Nazi connection was exposed, she appeared genuinely puzzled that this could hurt Sam. After all, she said, she was never a Nazi, although as a child she had belonged to the Hitler Youth movement. Her half-sister, Magda, was 20 years her senior and had married Dr. Goebbels in 1930, the year that she was born. She never lived in the same house or city with Magda and barely knew her. Her parents, she said, were anti-Nazi, especially on the question of Nazi persecution of the Jews.

All true, conceivably. But by that time it made very little difference what Ariane said. When I last talked to her in April, she said she had hired a lawyer to figure out how she could marry Sam by proxy, and I know she has taken steps to assist financially in legal moves to free him.

Was Sam Really Guilty?

What does Sam think of all this? He is cut off from the world and can't say.

Those who believe Sam a murderer say his apparent susceptibility to Ariane's international courtship points up facets in his character consistent with the theory of his guilt. Those who believe him innocent think fate has once again stepped in to hurt him. So the basic question remains: is Sam Sheppard guilty of killing his wife? Let's look at the evidence.

Injuries, including a bruise to the spinal cord which caused loss of reflexes, were suffered by Sam on the murder night but were scoffed at by the state as trivial or self-inflicted. Disorder in the house was blamed by the state on a clumsy attempt by Sam to simulate burglary in support of his intruder story. The state sent scientific investigators into the house but seized the keys and locked the place against inspection by the defense. No weapon was ever found—Sam must have hidden it, the state said—and no motive was ever established.

The state gave the jury an excuse to guess at a motive, however, by proof that Sam had been an unfaithful husband in an affair with an attractive, unmarried hospital technician—an affair which had been carried on up to four months before the slaying of Mrs. Sheppard.

In final analysis, the state proved two things: that Sam was in the house at the time of the murder and that he had been a philanderer.

So flimsy was the murder evidence against Sam that the state waited 26 days to arrest him and acted then only after public pressure demanded that the "principal suspect"—Sam—be taken into custody. This pressure pictured Sam as a rich man trying to get away with murder by virtue of skilled lawyers and an influential family. Prejudice against Sam was so high at the trial—and I attended every session of it—that in my opinion a fair trial was impossible.

The jury needed five days to reach a verdict, an indication that compromise and guesswork played a part in the outcome.

The trial judge rejected as grounds for a new trial evidence which a noted criminologist hired by the defense found in the murder room as soon as the state surrendered the keys to Sam's house. This included an expert deduction that the slayer must have been left-handed (Sam is not) and that one spot of blood came neither from Sam nor his wife, hence must have been deposited by a third person—the murderer.

Two Judges Dissent

The Court of Appeals for the Eighth Ohio district and the Ohio Supreme Court later upheld the conviction, but two judges of the Ohio Supreme Court spoke out strongly for Sam in a minority opinion, branding the evidence as wholly circumstantial and insufficient to warrant conviction.

These judges said Sam had suffered prejudice at his trial by admission of hearsay evidence, by erroneous instructions to the jury on the weight of character evidence and the nature of circumtantial evidence, and by telephone calls which jurors were permitted to make to members of their families in violation of law while deliberating on a verdict.

What next for Dr. Sam? He is back where he was when his prison career began but worse off because avenues of legal redress then open to him have been sealed off one by one as various courts have ruled against his appeals.

But two legal moves aiming at Sam's vindication are still in the mill. One is an appeal to the United States Supreme Court to order Ohio prison authorities to permit Sam to undergo a lie-detector test, which Sam has demanded unsuccessfully. The other is an appeal to the Federal courts for a writ of habeas corpus on the theory he was denied due process of law at his trial. This habeas corpus proceeding was initiated in April and may require years of expensive litigation. Not many such actions are successful.

Thus Sam's chances at the moment are not bright, but not dead, either. Many people, including this writer, believe he does not and never did belong in prison.

Blondes, love, and publicity should not obscure this challenge to the public conscience.

CADILLAC OWNERS DON'T ALWAYS AGREE about why they bought the car. A great many report that unexcelled craftsmanship and quality led them to the "car of cars". Others say the size and solidity of the car, its silence and smoothness in motion, convinced them to make the move. Still another group state their selection stemmed from the confidence and pride they experience at the wheel of a Cadillac. The reasons are legion. But there is one thing upon which all Cadillac owners unanimously agree: the new 1963 car is, in every way, the most rewarding possession a man can have.

Why Can't the Movie Be More Like the Book?

A best-selling novelist learns the answer from some Hollywood experts —including an uncannily clever Marlon Brando

By EUGENE BURDICK

Coauthor of "The Ugly American" and "Fail-Safe"

NO ONE IS CERTAIN when Hollywood got the idea of making movies out of books. Whenever it was, it started one of the most persistent nonviolent wars of modern times.

Literary warriors as powerful as Hemingway and Faulkner have sallied forth to Hollywood armed with sound books and high enthusiasm—and emerged from the fray with shaking nerves and palsied hands.

Early in the movie negotiations for the sale of our book, The Ugly American, William Lederer and I were approached by a character who epitomized the classic idea of a Hollywood movie studio's front-office representative. He wore Italian silk suits, white-on-white shirts, and a Dunhill cigar in his mouth. He drank martinis of imported English gin. He swore vilely, but he called Lederer and me "darling." He looked like a hood from central casting. He was perfect.

He held a copy of The Ugly American in his hand. "I haven't read it," he said around the cigar. "Somebody else does that. But 'they' like it—a little." Then, sensing he had gone too far, he hefted the book again. "Now remember, lover boys, if we buy it, we got one rule: forget art, we're in the entertainment business."

We didn't sell to his front office, but I always liked his frankness. Not that we considered The Ugly American high art; we had written it in

The Real Secret of SUCCESSFUL MARRIAGE

Advice on how to be happily married was never so freely available as it is today.

Marriage problems are openly discussed in newspaper columns and on the radio. Marriage advice is available from the man next door, who speaks from experience . . . and from the psychologist, whose views come from study and research. There is no topic . . . from etiquette to fidelity . . . on which advice and counsel are not available.

Yet with all this marriage education, the modern divorce rate continues at an appalling high!

This condition obviously is not due to ignorance of the so-called "facts of life." It cannot be attributed to economic problems, for good times have been repeatedly marked by a high divorce rate. Nor can it be blamed on the excuse of personal "incompatibility," which so often appears in divorce petitions.

These and other practical problems undoubtedly contribute to marriage conflicts. But the basic, fundamental cause of marriage failures goes deeper. It is the failure of many people to realize the true meaning of marriage . . . to recognize that it is a life-long union of a man and a woman . . . to see that its main purpose is the begetting and rearing of children.

In Catholic eyes, marriage is, first of all, a contract which . . . as with all contracts . . . must be governed by justice. A purely sentimental and physical attraction between a man and a woman, which is not permeated by a sense of duty to each other and to God, is not the love upon which enduring homes are built.

But the Catholic Church teaches that marriage must be what God meant it to be . . . and He made it not only a contract—but a Sacrament.

When the marriage of a man and a woman is a Sacrament, they receive title to all the divine helps necessary to overcome the disappointments and difficulties of domestic life. They are thus better able to overcome personality differences . . . better able to deal justly with each other . . . better able to understand the many practical problems of living together.

Marriage is not a strictly private affair. It is the concern of the whole community. It is the special concern of the Church, which is charged with safeguarding this Sacrament. That is why the Catholic Church strives to impress the true nature of marriage upon all who hear its voice.

Whether you are already married . . . or just thinking about it . . . you will be helped by a pamphlet we will send you explaining the true nature of marriage and the blessings that come from a proper understanding of the married state. Write for free copy. Nobody will call on you. Ask for Pamphlet No. FM-19.

Why Can't the Movie Be

haste and with some anger—and it showed. But we believed in the book's indictment of America's performance overseas. As a result, it has some impact, and we wanted that impact in the picture.

We finally sold the property (a book is never called a book in Hollywood) to Universal-International—largely because we were impressed with George Englund. He is a young, restless producer-director; a man more handsome than most actors and more interested in world affairs than most professors of international relations. He has traveled a good deal in Southeast Asia and knows little quirks of Buddhist religion, Malay personality, and Communist politics, which we thought would add authenticity to the book.

Englund also has a scalding sense of honesty. "As drama, this book is a mess," he said during the negotiations. I winced. "Too many characters, too many lectures, too many episodes. Don't," he said with a grin, "expect the movie to be like the book."

NEARLY four years later, I saw the "rough cut" of the movie. Englund had been right. But now I knew some of the reasons—I had learned a great deal.

I sat in on the first story conference between Englund and Stewart Stern, a tall, quiet script writer who has the reputation of never working on something in which he does not believe. They went through the book, cutting down characters with an odd mixture of piety, enthusiasm, and efficiency. It went on for hours.

When I came out of the conference, I was reeling slightly. I had learned a lesson: in a novel, you can write, "Jamie felt a white-hot flash of passion," but in a movie, you have to show it and in three dimensions. A novel, even a good one, can have characters who are as thin as the paper on which their names appear. The novelist can say something is so and order the reader to believe it. On the screen, you have to persuade your customer.

Somewhat later I learned that Marlon Brando was going to play the lead in the picture and that he wanted me to come to Tahiti, where he was doing another movie at the time. I assumed it was to talk about the filming of The Ugly American. But in two weeks, we explicitly discussed the book for only five minutes.

Some sort of an eerie exchange was going on, however. At dinner we might start off by talking about a progressive school in England. Gradually we might slide into the differences between American and English character, and then things would get to a hard point: do English diplomats perform better than Americans?

The arguments often got heated, but they always were over by midnight. Despite stories I have read, Brando never drank after dinner and was almost morbidly sensitive to his "call" the next morning.

I USUALLY WALKED out into the mild Tahitian night with the sensation of being "had." Brando slides into one's mind, pulls out a bit of knowledge, clutches it, and runs. He does it with a gentle skill which must be inherited; no man could live long enough to learn it.

He struck me as a man picking up fragments with the hope of putting them into something recognizable. An example: once he asked me about latah, a curious hysterical state which is easily induced in Malays. As I finished, I looked up and he was latah: eyes glazed, mouth slightly open, breathing very rapid, movements jerky and mechanical. He winked, recomposed his face. It was only a rehearsal, but it was terrifyingly like the real thing.

Back on the mainland, I saw Englund and Stern at work. By now they had crept inside the characters whom Lederer and I had invented—characters I knew only as deeply as ink prints on paper. They argued ferociously and actually seemed to be living the characters.

Part of their work was pure, hilarious fantasy. Sarkhan, the country in which the book's action takes place, is wholly fiction. But they had invented a Sarkhanese dialect, designed a flag for the country, and drew up a map of Southeast Asia on which they had hacked out a place for their new nation. They even took sides in domestic Sarkhanese politics.

Occasionally I would comment. They didn't hear; they were off in a visionary world, living it completely. And they worked much harder than had Lederer and I.

THREE YEARS, seven months, and 15 days after we closed the deal, Lederer and I saw the movie in Hollywood. The screen came alive with a hot shimmering scene of Asia. For several moments, I sat with stomach muscles as tense as a washboard. Then for two hours and three minutes, I watched the film unfold. It has only the most passing resemblance to a novel called The Ugly American. Some names were the same, a few situations seemed familiar. But it was like trying to remember a dream. We had given the characters names; now they walked and talked, but they were strangers.

Five minutes later I had forgotten that the picture was partly mine and also that Brando was a friend. I remembered only the tiny snips and bits he had picked up—for now they came back at me from the screen.

I think the picture is better than the book; more integrated, more skillful, and more dramatic. It is a hard thing to acknowledge. It is even harder to concede that, in between the brilliant colors and the savage acting, the political impact is still there. It is slipped into speeches, implied by the ferocious lowing of a mob moving in to kill Brando. But it is there.

When the screening was over, we walked out into the empty alleys of the Universal lot. "When do we eat?" Lederer asked. Then, turning to Englund, he added: "A good flick. Where did you get the idea for it?" We all laughed. Not an easy laugh, but an understanding one.

A delicate sea-foam green in color coupled with the refreshing full flavor of lime—Angel-Lime Fluff is the grand finale to a bridal shower luncheon.

You are cordially invited to...

A SHOWER FOR THE BRIDE

Family Weekly Cookbook • MELANIE DE PROFT, Food Editor

Angel-Lime Fluff

1 cup cold water
2 tablespoons (2 env.) unflavored gelatin
2 6-oz. cans frozen limeade concentrate, thawed
1 cup cold water
⅛ teaspoon green food coloring
1 1-lb., 4-oz. angel food cake, torn into pieces
2⅔ cups undiluted evaporated milk
2 teaspoons lemon juice

1. Soften gelatin in 1 cup cold water in a small saucepan. Set over low heat until dissolved, stirring constantly.

2. Combine the limeade concentrate, 1 cup cold water, and the food coloring in a bowl; stir in the gelatin. Chill until mixture is slightly thicker than the consistency of thick, unbeaten egg white. If chilled in refrigerator, stir occasionally; if chilled over ice and water, stir frequently.

3. Meanwhile, chill evaporated milk in a tray in freezer until ice crystals begin to form around edge.

4. When gelatin is of desired consistency, pour over the angel food cake pieces and beat together until smooth and well blended.

5. Beat icy evaporated milk and lemon juice together until very stiff. Fold into the lime mixture until thoroughly blended.

6. Turn enough of the mixture into a 10-in. tubed spring-form pan (removable bottom) to fill to within 1 in. of top.

7. Place a waxed paper collar* around inside top of pan and center tube so that each extends about 2 in. above rim. Pour remaining mixture into the pan and swirl the top (see photo). Chill until set, about 4 hrs.

8. Remove waxed paper collars; unmold and place on a serving plate. Garnish simply, as desired. About 12 servings

*Waxed paper collar—Cut length of waxed paper long enough to circle pan. Fold in fourths lengthwise. Bring ends together to form circle. Repeat for center tube.

Note: For easy removal of dessert from mold, fit a ring of heavy cardboard covered with moisture-vaporproof material onto bottom of the tubed spring-form pan.

Deviled Ham Soufflé Roll

GOOD FOR FREEZING

¼ cup butter or margarine
½ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups milk
4 egg yolks
4 egg whites
Deviled Ham 'n' Mushroom Filling (see recipe)

1. Grease and flour a 15½x10½x1-in. jelly-roll pan. Set aside.

2. Heat butter or margarine in a saucepan; remove from heat and blend in flour and salt. Gradually add milk, stirring constantly until smooth. Continue to stir and bring rapidly to boiling; boil 1 to 2 min. Remove from heat.

3. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. Add sauce, a small amount at a time, to egg yolks, stirring vigorously after each addition. Set aside to cool.

4. Using a clean beater, beat egg whites until rounded peaks are formed (peaks turn over slightly when beater is slowly lifted upright).

5. Gently spread egg yolk mixture over the beaten egg whites. Carefully fold together until just blended.

6. Turn the soufflé mixture into the pan and spread evenly to corners.

7. Bake at 325°F 50 to 55 min., or until golden brown. Loosen edges of soufflé and invert onto a sheet of aluminum foil on a large cooling rack. Spread with Deviled Ham 'n' Mushroom Filling. Gently roll lengthwise, wrap in foil, and allow to stand about 10 min. to set.

8. To serve, remove roll from foil, place on a warm serving platter, and surround with water cress. About 12 servings

Note: Roll may be prepared in advance, cooled completely, then wrapped and frozen. If served cold, thaw completely. If served warm, set on a baking sheet, spread foil open, and heat in a 325°F oven for about 30 min. Transfer to a warm serving platter.

Deviled Ham 'n' Mushroom Filling

1 tablespoon butter or margarine
2 4-oz. cans mushroom stems and pieces, drained
2 4½-oz. cans deviled ham
½ cup dairy sour cream
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ cup chopped chives or scallions

1. Heat butter or margarine in a skillet. Add the mushrooms and cook 5 min., or until mushrooms are lightly browned; stir occasionally.
2. Blend a mixture of the remaining ingredients into the mushrooms. 2 cups filling

Love Apples en Brochette

Thread cherry tomatoes onto 4-in. skewers, allowing three tomatoes to each. Center a water cress "bouquet" on a chilled 12-in. serving plate; alternate the tomato skewers and sprigs of water cress spoke-fashion around "bouquet."

A Leafy Hat By Garna Silke

On a lazy summer day, how about making yourself a hat of leaves? Maple leaves are best because they have long firm stems that can be used as pins. Other leaves which have broad surfaces and don't wilt too quickly will work out well, too.

Here's what you do for the hat. Gather a small heap of leaves. Pinch off the stems and make a chain of the leaves by overlapping them, tip behind tip, and using either a pinched-off stem or a toothpick to pin them together. Measure the strip to fit your forehead and join the ends together. Make another strip a few leaves shorter and close the top of this one. Pin the sides of the two strips together. Presto, a hat!

Girls might also like to make a garland or a stole of the leaves. The stole is easily made by joining the sides of two or three long strips and draping it over the shoulders.

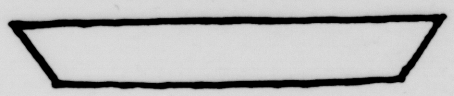

A maple-leaf outfit makes an excellent costume for a play or a pretend game about a wood nymph or an elf.

Catch the Jumper By Bea Kiles

Two players stand opposite each other holding a jump rope slack. The others line up, Indian file, and run at the rope continuously, jumping over it each time they pass. At any moment the holders may raise the rope a foot or so. If they succeed in touching a jumper as he clears it, this runner then takes the place of one of the holders.

Delectable Pecan Bread

½ teaspoon baking powder
⅛ teaspoon salt

½ cup plus 2 tablespoons sugar
2 eggs, beaten until thick and piled softly

1. Finely chop ½ cup of the pecans; grate the remaining nuts and mix together.

2. Blend the flour, baking powder, and salt together; mix with the nuts and set aside.

3. Cream the butter and extract together. Gradually add the sugar, creaming until fluffy after each addition.

The Saga of Billy Smith

When Billy Smith was only three,
He knew what he was going to be:
He knew, without his parents' urgin',
That he would someday be a surgeon:
To prove it, Billy marched upstairs
And cut the legs off several chairs.

When Billy Smith had grown to four,
He knew what fate had put in store,
He knew deep down inside his chest
He'd be a gunslinger out West:
He took his gun and with precision
Slung it through the television.

When Billy Smith accomplished five,
He knew what trade would make him thrive;
He knew one day in early summer
That he was meant to be a plumber:
He battered pipes down in the basement
'Til water lapped against the casement.

When Billy Smith was thus concerned
With how his income would be earned,
His parents, whose careers were set,
Gave up their work with small regret:
The day that Billy Smith was six,
His folks were full-time lunatics.

The husband took his wife to a baseball game for the first time and carefully explained the rules before things got under way. Then he settled back, hoping to enjoy the game without interruption. It was a close contest, and at one point the husband excitedly exclaimed:

"Look, Hon, we've got a man on every base right now!"

"What of it?" his wife answered. "So has the other team."

The last time some husbands gave their wives a helping hand was when they cut the wedding cake.

Two tramps were huddled in an alley during a chilly, rainy night, and one lamented: "This is a terrible life! Nights on park benches, cops chasing you, dodging from one town to another, never knowing where your next meal is, sneered at by everybody . . ."

"Well," the other tramp interrupted, "if it's so bad, why don't you go out and find yourself a steady job?"

"What?" exclaimed the first tramp. "And admit I'm a failure?"

kids write their congressmen

And when they do, they're often outrageously funny — and embarrassingly truthful

Compiled by Harold Dunn Illustrated by Syd Hoff

IN MOST STATES, you have to be 21 to vote for a Congressman. But there's no age limitation placed on who can write him—and nobody knows this better than America's kids.

They regularly take pen, pencil, or crayon in hand and express their thoughts in no uncertain terms to their Congressmen—or even to somebody else's.

Some of the letters are zany, some have the urgency of a telegram—and all of them are uninhibited. Here is a selection of such letters to Congressmen, in which the truth is expressed as only kids can do it.

Chairman
Legislative Branch
Washington, D.C.
Dear Chairman:

Why this business of having two senators for every state? One is plenty. Sure you would have to work a little harder, but we must all do our part to help in these times. You should say a speech about it and resign.

A Future Taxpayer

Senator Ernest Gruening
The Senate
Washington, D.C.
Dear Senator Gruening,

A question arose in my mind while I was hearing the news last night. I do not get paid for coming to school. May I see someone about my unemployment check?

Dennis S——

Mrs. Catherine May
Congressional Building
Washington, D.C.
Dear Mrs. May:

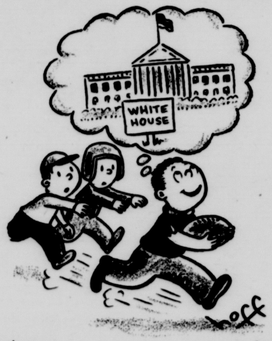

I am a Baptist and a Brownie. May I join the Republicans besides, or would this give me a conflecting interest?

Marie W——

Senator Harry Byrd
Senate Office
Washington, D.C.
Dear Senator Byrd:

This is to inform you that I am going to name my baby after you if I get married and he is a boy and he is my fourth one. You are fourth on my list.

Rules Committee
Congress
Dear Chairman:

Get me the official rules for football (touch) so I can practice to be President.

Thank you very much.

Lloyd L——

Senator Everett Dirkson
Senate Bldg.
Washington, D.C.
Dear Senator Dirkson:

All my friends are running for president, so I am choosing something else. Of all these people, who makes more: a governor or senator or house of representative, so when I run I will know. I plan on thinking of my family as well as my career.

Sincerely,
Hal K——

Congressman Thomas Pelly
Congress Building
Washington, D.C.
Dear Congressman Pelly,

Have you made up your opinion on China yet? Please send it to me and I would like to see it. I already have my opinion, so don't give any facts if you don't mind.

Thank you,
Gilbert S——

Congressman John Jarman

Dear Congressman Jarman,

I would like your autograph. Please mail it in a plain envelope as long as my folks are Democrats.

Randall B——

Congressman Craig Hosmer

Washington, D.C.
Dear Congressman Hosmer:

Sincer

Oh, write two letters while you think of it because I think I know where I can sell one.

Sincerely,
Charles H——

Senator Philip Hart
The U.S. Senate

SARAKA SOLVES THE PROBLEM OF "AFTER 45" IRREGULARITY

Doctor-approved bulk stimulant helps keep you comfortably on schedule as no ordinary laxative can!

As we grow older, our systems may often need outside aid to help maintain a normal regularity pattern. Continued use of strong drug laxatives can be irritating, even dangerous. That's why many doctors recommend SARAKA, the pure, all-vegetable bulk stimulant laxative for middle age and over. SARAKA supplies the moist, bland bulk that is so essential to healthy bowel function. And only SARAKA has a gentle stimulant action to help ease this bulk through your system plus Vitamin B1.

Special note to weight watchers: Lack of sufficient bulk in 900 calorie liquids can lead to constipation. If this occurs, supplement your daily diet with all-vegetable SARAKA.

KREIGH COLLINS

DECEIVED BY KIRA'S FALSE REPORT, LORD NOBU HAS ORDERED THE ARREST OF TOSHI, WILL AND KEVIN, AS BANDITS.

ARREST THEM!

HAVE YOU BEEN ROBBED?

NO, SIR. YOU ARRIVED JUST IN TIME!

T.M. Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.

DISARM THESE BANDITS AND BRING THEM TO NOBU'S CASTLE!

BANDITS? I AM TOSHI, LORD OF ARATA!

IT'S NO GOOD TO RESIST, TOSHI. SURELY, LORD NOBU WILL RECOGNIZE YOU.

NOBU HAS NEVER SEEN MY FACE, WILL, NOR HAVE I SEEN HIS!

COME ON YOU! DO YOUR TALKING TO LORD NOBU!

YES, LORD NOBU, THEY ROBBED US AND TERRIFIED LADY YURI TO NEAR INSANITY!

KIRA LIES, SIR! I AM TOSHI OF ARATA. KIRA ABDUCTED MY BETROTHED, LADY YURI, WHOM WE ARE TRYING TO RESCUE!

BUT I AM TOLD YOU WERE ROBBING PILGRIMS.

WE QUESTIONED THEM, BECAUSE KIRA AND YURI WERE DISGUISED AS PILGRIMS WHEN THEY ENTERED YOUR DOMAIN!

AN INGENIOUS LIE! WHY SHOULD I DISGUISE MYSELF?

I'VE SEEN NO ONE IN PILGRIM GARB TODAY.

BE SILENT OR YOU WILL DIE HERE!

YOU WILL BE TRIED BY THE IMPERIAL MAGISTRATE, WHO WILL ARRIVE TOMORROW.

BUT KIRA WILL ESCAPE TO OZUMI BY THEN!
